TWO ARABS KILLED IN SKIRMISH THREE WOUNDED AND NINE ARRESTED TROOPS FIND AMMUNITION

(Special to "Telegraph")
Jerusalem, June 24.
Two Arabs were killed and three wounded when a detachment of British troops, searching an Arab village near Jerusalem, met opposition necessitating the use of firearms.
The troops were carrying out cleaning up operations in the area where there have been several ambushes of troops recently on the Jaffa-Jerusalem main line.
Three houses in a village in the Tulkarem area, in which were found unused ammunition, were demolished by the soldiers and nine Arabs were arrested.—Reuter Special.

AMERICA "SEIZES" ISLANDS SCHOOLBOYS AS COLONISTS FORESTALLED BRITAIN

Honolulu, June 24.
The small islands of Baker, Jarvis and Howland, which recently figured prominently as outposts of the proposed air-line from Honolulu to New Zealand, have now been officially "colonised" with American citizens.
It is believed this move on the part of the United States is made with the object of forestalling claims by the British Government. These islands were formerly looked upon as being British, but since they were not colonised, in fact had no living soul upon them, the United States laid claim to them.
Twelve American schoolboys have hastily been taken from Honolulu in a coastguard cutter and four are being left at each of the three islands, where they will plant the American flag.—Reuter.

CHURCHILL NOT SATISFIED WANTS DEFENCE DETAILS

London, June 24.
Speaking in London to-day, Mr. Winston Churchill expressed dissatisfaction with the present methods of discussing arrangements for national defence.
In his view, Parliament should set up a committee representing all parties to interrogate the Government secretly, under protection of confidence, as to the arrangements they were making in the different spheres of defence.—British Wireless.

NO NEED FOR WAR PANIC Hoare Reassures Empire Society BRITAIN TO BUILD NAVY OF PREDOMINANT POWER

London, June 24.
"There is no need for panic, and no need to assume that war is inevitable," declared Sir Samuel Hoare, recently returned to the British Cabinet, when speaking to the Royal Empire Society in London to-night.
No country in Europe desired war, he said, but there was so much inflammable material in Europe that a spark might start a conflagration, "unless great Powers, like ourselves, are strong enough to make our influence felt in the cause of peace."
If the British Army, Navy and Air Force were adequately strengthened in time, there would be no war, he asserted.
If, he continued, a well-balanced British Fleet, capable of defeating an enemy and keeping the seas open, and equipped to go anywhere, could be built in time, there would be no world war.

The speed of her crossing will require an average pace of almost 29 1/2 knots per hour, by which she established a record on her maiden voyage.—Reuter Bulletin Service.

DEMOCRATS SEEKING PLATFORM LABOUR ISSUES ARE OUTSTANDING

Philadelphia, June 24.
The Democratic Party's national convention completed its preliminary business speedily and then noisily, and in disorder, prepared to organise on a permanent basis preparatory to adopting a platform and re-nominating President Franklin D. Roosevelt.
The delegates are merely riding the mighty Party steam-roller, whose course is already set, but there are continuous whispered conferences which make the convention tick.
The permanent organisation of committees includes Mr. Edward Kemp, Manila; Mr. Dan Devlin, Hawaii; Credentials: Mr. Donald McEwen, Manila; and Mr. Charles Holt, Hawaii; Rules; and Mr. Lionel G. Harris, Manila; and Mr. Polindexter, Hawaii, Platform Committee.
The Platform Committee listened all day long to volunteer plank bawlers, but sought among its own membership to compose the vital issues, including the question of amending the Constitution on behalf of labour. Mr. William Green, President of the Federation of Labour, demanded curtailment of the Supreme Court's powers, a thirty-hour work week, continued Federal public works, high wages, a guarantee of labour's right to organise, continuation of the New Deal and social security plans.

If she accepts, he said, he would take his bride along with him.—United Press.

STRIKE MENACE SUBSIDES SEAMEN'S DEMANDS ACCEPTED

Marseilles, June 24.
The shipping strike, which earlier to-day took on an ugly aspect when strikers quit work on six submarines and others occupied two cruisers, at St. Nazaire, in the course of construction, has been settled.
The strike ended with strains blowing a tuneless chorus, indicating the satisfaction of the strikers, who had literally seized nearly seventy ships in the harbour and hoisted the red flag of Communism.
All the men's claims have been accepted, according to representatives of the men's unions. The men remain in the possession of the ships, but are expected to evacuate them to-morrow.—Reuter.

EQUALS HITTING RECORD TWO HOMERS IN ONE INNING DIMAGGIO'S DISTINCTION

New York, June 24.
A major league record was equalled by the New York Yankee slugger, Dimaggio, to-day when he poked out two home runs in one inning.
His feat was accomplished during a terrific hitting attack which Phelps, the Chicago pitcher, could not hold. Most of New York's runs came in one inning, when almost every man batted twice and Dimaggio distinguished himself.
Altogether the Yankees, who lead the League, scored eighteen runs, but besides Dimaggio's homers, Crosetti, Dickey and Powell drove the ball over the stands. The Yanks hit 24 times, the highest total this season.
The White Sox did their share of hitting too, scoring eleven times on twelve connections, Sewell hitting a homer.
Home runs did not save Boston against Detroit. Although W. Ferrell and Miller both scored with circuit drives, the Red Sox only scored six times on ten hits, while the Tigers scored seven on eleven, aided by Owen's homer.
Cleveland scored a win over Philadelphia, Averill and Truesky hitting for a circuit and giving Reds five runs in eleven running starts. Athletics hit eight and tallied six times. This was the first of a double-header.
In the second game of their double-header Cleveland repeated the earlier performance. The Indians scored fourteen runs on as many hits. Averill getting a homer, and the Athletics only managed two runs on nine connections. Philadelphia had one error.
Washington again beat St. Louis, seven to four, hitting twelve times, against seven, including Roter's homer.
Rain interrupted.

FOR once in a way let's pay attention to men. The men of your family probably think very little, if at all, about their personal appearance, but, if given the chance, they would prefer to keep their hair on their head and their middle-aged spread at bay.

And yet no one takes the trouble to teach them, even the elementary rules of self-protection.

If you object to your husband going bald, the first rule is not under any circumstances to allow him to wash his head in the bath, which is a horrible habit peculiar to men. Make him shampoo his hair in a civilised manner in the wash-basin.

Shave up an ounce of castile soap, and melt it over a slow fire in a pint of warm water. Make him wash his head with several lathers and at least four rinsing waters, with half a cup of vinegar in the last rinsing water.

Teach him that a hair-brush is not only to smooth his hair into place, but is intended for actual brushing purposes. Before the last smoothing takes place, he should take both his brushes and brush his hair on end so that the scalp is treated to a reasonable amount of friction.

After a thorough brushing, he can apply all the hair lotion that he wishes to keep his unruly locks in place.

At the first signs of thinning a good hair tonic should be applied each day. There is one particularly good brand made with oil for dry scalps and without oil for greasy scalps.

Is Your Husband Going Bald?

Asks

MEN would be saved all complexion trouble if they would only give the top half of their faces one quarter of the attention that they give the lower half. The average man lathers his face, shaves it neatly, and finishes with a careless wipe of the sponge and a flick of the towel. If when he has finished shaving he would take a rubber sponge and treat the top part of his face to a light lather of ordinary complexion soap, giving his nose plenty of friction, and then rinse thoroughly with cool water, he would prevent any inclination towards blackheads, which in a man only appear on the nose and upper part of the cheek.

Any signs of roughness or lumpy rashes should be kept clean by swabbing with warm boracic lotion and dabbed afterwards with calamine lotion.

THOSE men who tinker about with machinery and whose hands are inclined to get extra rough and dirty should be provided with warm olive oil.

The best way is to pour plenty of olive oil into the palm of the hand before washing, rub it well into the hands, and then wash off with lukewarm water and a good lather of soap. This gets most of the stickiness off, and the second ordinary washing will leave the hands clean and prevent chapping.

There is a special iodine oil which can be rubbed round the cracked cuticles and will put them in condition again in a very short space of time.

A DAILY dozen is even more necessary for men than it is for women because men have no support in the way of belts and corsets. A correct breathing exercise is the most important part of the daily routine. This is done as follows:

Stand erect near an open window, place the palms of the hands on the lower part of the ribs, breathe through your nose until the lower ribs expand as far as possible, then let the breath out by contracting the abdominal wall inwards.

Then he crashed, wrecking his aeroplane and 50 yards of strawberry frumace.

At Gosport when he was fined £50 for dangerous flying, he admitted that he was showing off his flying ability to men working beneath.

WHO'S AFRAID of the BIG Bold MERCURY

When there's these ways of Quenching that Thirst

HOT days call for long, refreshing, cooling drinks—and plenty of them! It's great fun making them at home; considerably cheaper, too.

CURRENT WINE
Four pounds red or black currants, 4lb. sugar, 1 gallon water. Wash and stem currants. Put into large earthenware vessel, add water. Cover and stand for 3 days, stirring each day. Press through a strainer, add sugar, and when dissolved pour into a cask. When fermentation ceases, bottle. Cork tightly and stand in cool, dry place.

RAISIN WINE
Two pounds raisins, 4lb. sugar, 2 gallons cold water, 2 table-spoons yeast. Remove any stalks from raisins, put into large boiler with little water, and simmer till soft about 30 minutes—then rub through a sieve. Mix the sugar in the liquid and strain pulp and yeast. Leave for 3 days, then strain the liquid into a cask. Stand loosely until fermentation ceases, then allow the cask to stand for 12 months before bottling the wine.

GINGER BEER
Six ounces bruised ginger, 5lb. sugar, 1 lb. honey, 4 gallons water, 6 table-spoons lemon juice, essence lemon to taste, 1 egg-white. Boil ginger in 3 quarts water for 30 minutes, then add sugar, lemon juice, honey, and rest of water. Strain through flannel. When cool, add beaten egg-white and lemon essence. Cover and stand 4 days, then bottle. Cork down tightly. This ginger beer will keep for months.

RUSSIAN TEA
One teaspoon-ful to each ½ pint water, ice-cubes of lemon. Make the tea for the usual way. Strain liquid off and allow to become quite cold. When ready to serve, put one lump sugar in a glass, add some shaved ice and a few drops of lemon. Fill the glass with the cold tea and serve at once.

CLARET CUP
One bottle claret, small bottle

soda water, 1 large bottle lemonade, 2 table-spoons sugar, 1 pint water, 1 pint lemon juice, 1 pint ginger ale, 1 pint soda water, ice.

MANHATTAN FRUITCUP
One pint any fruit juice, 1 pint ginger ale, 1 pint soda water, ice. Mix fruit juice and ginger ale, and thoroughly chill. Just before serving add the soda water. Serve in small glasses with shaved ice.

LEMON TEA
One teaspoon-ful to each ½ pint water, ice-cubes of lemon. Squeeze the lemon into a jug. Pour on ½ pint boiling water. Pour this on to the tea in the teapot and stand 2 minutes. Fill up the teapot with boiling water and stand 2 minutes. Strain off into glasses. Serve cut slices of lemon separately.

TEA PUNCH
One cup of hot tea, 9 table-spoons orange juice, 4 table-spoons lemon juice, 4 table-spoons sugar, 1 pint ginger ale, 1 pint soda water, 3 table-spoons sherry. Make the tea and pour on to the sugar. When dissolved, add orange and lemon juice. When cold, add ginger ale, soda water, and sherry; then the shaved ice. Serve in glasses garnished with slices of mint or thin slices of orange.

TAKING OUT STAINS

GREASE. Spot with refined petrol or cleaning spirit. If it resists rub in oleic acid and then ammonia, washing it off afterwards.

INK. For writing ink try to remove it with ammonia and water. If it still resists put the stain with oleic acid ammonia. Wash this off and treat with salts of lemon to remove the iron. Then treat with hypochlorite solution and wash it immediately with cold water. If a slight brown stain remains treat it with hydrosulphite. Ink stains on furniture can be removed with a little vinegar in slightly warm water. For marking ink dab the stain with iodine, then with ordinary photographic "fixer."

SHOE POLISH. Wash with warm water and soap. Spot with a mixture of amyl acetate and acetone.

TALK. Spot with refined petrol or cleaning spirit and then wash with warm water.

SHOWED OFF AND THEN CRASHED

PETER ALEXANDER NICHOLAS, son of Admiral J. Nicholas, of Lee-on-Solent, stunted over a nursery at Gosport, looping and diving within 10 feet of a gardener.

Then he crashed, wrecking his aeroplane and 50 yards of strawberry frumace.

At Gosport when he was fined £50 for dangerous flying, he admitted that he was showing off his flying ability to men working beneath.

NURSE WADDINGHAM CONFESSED

But She Said:

"Tell The Children
I Am Innocent"

Nottingham, June 1.
MOROTHEA WADDINGHAM, hanged on April 16 for murdering Ada Baguley, confessed a few hours before she died.

She was making her will at the time.

"Tell my children I am innocent," she said in the statement disposing of her property.

The confession was made suddenly—unexpectedly.

It has been kept a close secret since. Not even her solicitor, Mr. R. A. Young, knew of it.

"It is news to me," he said.

"HYSTERICAL"
Mr. R. J. Sullivan, who was acquitted of the murder for which Nurse Waddingham was executed, said: "I suppose it is possible, but I'm very surprised to hear it."

"She was in a very hysterical state when I saw her two days before the execution."

"I don't think she knew quite what she was doing."

He said this in the house in Devon-drive, where Ada Baguley died.

The room was piled high with linoleum, carpets and furniture.

"You can see I am moving from here," Mr. Sullivan said, waving his hand with a weary gesture which took in the bare little sitting-room.

"I can't stand the gossiping tongues any longer. It has become absolute torture."

"People nudge each other in the street as I pass."

"I am going to live outside Nottingham."

"Things have become so bad here that I am thinking of changing my name."

Anger came into Sullivan's voice: "I have stood my trial, and been found innocent," he said.

"Why on earth can't people be decent and leave me alone?"

WHEN
A LOTTERY

New York, June 21.
CONTRACT Bridge is a game of skill.

Two New York teachers were arrested for running as a gambling house a studio in which bridge was played for small prizes.

Mr. Ely Culbertson gave evidence before three judges in special sessions, and he summed up his philosophy of the game by saying: "Bridge is predominantly a game of skill, but there is the same element of chance in it as in life."

Another expert, Mr. Albert Morehead, said the only element of chance in bridge was when your partner was unable to play his best game.

The prosecution admitted that it had searched the city, but could find no one who would testify that bridge was a game of chance, and the case was dismissed.

"A $12,000,000 industry in America has been saved by this decision," said Mr. Culbertson, afterwards.

Five Meals A Day Keep The Quins' Doctor Away

Montreal, June 1.
WHAT is the ideal diet for babies?

If you want to know take a peep into the nursery of the Dionne Quins, who, in spite of the tremendous handicap with which they started life, are, at the age of one year eleven months, probably the world's healthiest infants.

They are neither fat nor lean, but happy, hungry, roistering children working off all day long their healthy energy.

Dr. Allan R. Dufour, their guardian, has worked out a system of dietary which, he believes, is scientifically perfect for children of their age.

TO-DAY'S IDEAL
"A generation ago the ideal baby was the fat baby," he said.

Anglo-Hollywood Alliance

"BORROWED"

An Anglo-American film alliance of some significance is indicated by the signing of an agreement whereby British National Films, Ltd., are to have the co-operation and support of the important Hollywood company, Twentieth Century Fox.

British National Films has the millennium Lady Yule among its directors.

When the company was formed it had ambitious plans, and Mr. John Corfield, another director, said recently that its modest production so far was due to studio shortage as well as to the difficulties of engaging stars and of ensuring distribution in America.

"The facilities offered for training our personnel in Hollywood," said Mr. Corfield, "and the access British National has to the efforts of the best American writers can only prove of the greatest value."

"We can now borrow well-known players, purchase stories hitherto not available, and take advantage of the unique production facilities and organization of Twentieth Century Fox."

TOOK DEATH DOSE
AND LIVED

London, June 15.

A UNIVERSITY audience of 1,000 doctors, students and scientists here watched a professor swallow a heavy dose of arsenic—which he neutralised an hour later by taking a pill of his own invention.

The professor, a noted Polish scientist named Tadeus Skrzyzowski, claims that his antidote has already saved the lives of hundreds of would-be suicides.

It was reported that Mrs. Greswolde's local doctor had administered the drug—without knowing that it contained atophan, a dangerous drug if administered continuously.

No mention of this fact was made in the literature describing the preparation with which the doctor had been supplied. A marginal note was added to the leaflet later, following a fatality caused by the drug.

Professor P. C. Cloake, of Birmingham University, said the drug was a most valuable remedy in certain cases. The woman's death was due to the administration of the drug in a way which was wrong and dangerous.

The professor said he thought the inquest served no useful purpose. He had not reported the death to the coroner's office. A post-mortem examination had been conducted at his hospital.

"NO JUSTIFICATION"
"You had no justification to do that and interfere with the evidence," said the coroner.

Dr. H. G. Jacobsen, a German, of Woodstock-road, Golders Green, N., whose evidence was interpreted, said he was responsible for the drug formula. He introduced it in Germany in 1925 and in England three years later.

Dr. Davison, returning a "Death from misadventure" verdict, said he thought the local doctor had administered the drug in good faith, as Dr. Jacobsen and the distributors, a London firm, said it was good for the complaint and not dangerous.

"SAFE" DRUG TREATMENT: WOMAN DIED

THE death of Mrs. Ethel Greswolde, aged fifty, of Webb-lane, Hall Green, Birmingham, from the effects of a drug prescribed by a London doctor for rheumatoid arthritis led to this comment by Coroner Dr. W. H. Davison at Birmingham.

"If this can happen to a patient who, having been seen and approved as suitable for treatment by the doctor responsible for the formula of the drug, and who was in the practice of a medical practitioner, who was so cautious as to confirm by inquiry from his chemist if it was safe to use the drug, then I have not the least hesitation in saying that in future further and more explicit instructions as to the use of the drug should be supplied with it by the distributors."

He added that this applied particularly in chronic cases where treatment was prolonged.

CONTAINED ATOPHAN
It was reported that Mrs. Greswolde's local doctor had administered the drug—without knowing that it contained atophan, a dangerous drug if administered continuously.

No mention of this fact was made in the literature describing the preparation with which the doctor had been supplied. A marginal note was added to the leaflet later, following a fatality caused by the drug.

Professor P. C. Cloake, of Birmingham University, said the drug was a most valuable remedy in certain cases. The woman's death was due to the administration of the drug in a way which was wrong and dangerous.

The professor said he thought the inquest served no useful purpose. He had not reported the death to the coroner's office. A post-mortem examination had been conducted at his hospital.

"NO JUSTIFICATION"
"You had no justification to do that and interfere with the evidence," said the coroner.

Dr. H. G. Jacobsen, a German, of Woodstock-road, Golders Green, N., whose evidence was interpreted, said he was responsible for the drug formula. He introduced it in Germany in 1925 and in England three years later.

Dr. Davison, returning a "Death from misadventure" verdict, said he thought the local doctor had administered the drug in good faith, as Dr. Jacobsen and the distributors, a London firm, said it was good for the complaint and not dangerous.

"LOVE PHILTRE" GIRL'S AIR DASH

'My £14,000
Wasted'

Paris, June 15.

MISS BABY SIEGFRIED Knudsen, the Swedish blonde, who accuses a well-known Paris fortune teller of extracting £14,000 from her for "love philtres and magic potions" to retain the love of a wealthy banker whom she had vainly hoped to marry, dashed by air from London to Paris to-day to present her case to the examining magistrate here.

Wearing a smartly tailored dark costume, and shallow-crowned hat with a broad upturned brim, Miss Knudsen hurried into the magistrate's room and declared: "Mme. de Tanis (the fortune-teller) assured me that she had remarkable powers by which she could help me to retain my lover's affections."

"Yet the £14,000 I spent on various potions she recommended was entirely wasted."

"It seems a fantastic thing, but when needs arise one takes advantage of any means at one's disposal."

The fortune-teller, whose real name is Mme. Soudre, also appeared before the magistrate.

A stout, alert-faced woman, she wore a smart fur-collared coat with a long, flowing velvet robe which swept the ground.

Afterwards she said to a reporter: "This astounding accusation is completely without foundation."

"My clientele includes some of the crowned heads of Europe and a large number of leading personalities in French society."

CONFRONTATION DRAMA
"I handed the examining magistrate letters from famous men and women which prove that I am quite incapable of extracting such a sum of money from this young woman."

"Naturally a fee was paid by Miss Knudsen. When you go to a doctor you have to pay a fee. It is the same when you consult someone as to the future, the fee must be paid. To grumble about it afterwards, when perhaps things do not turn out as they should, is ridiculous."

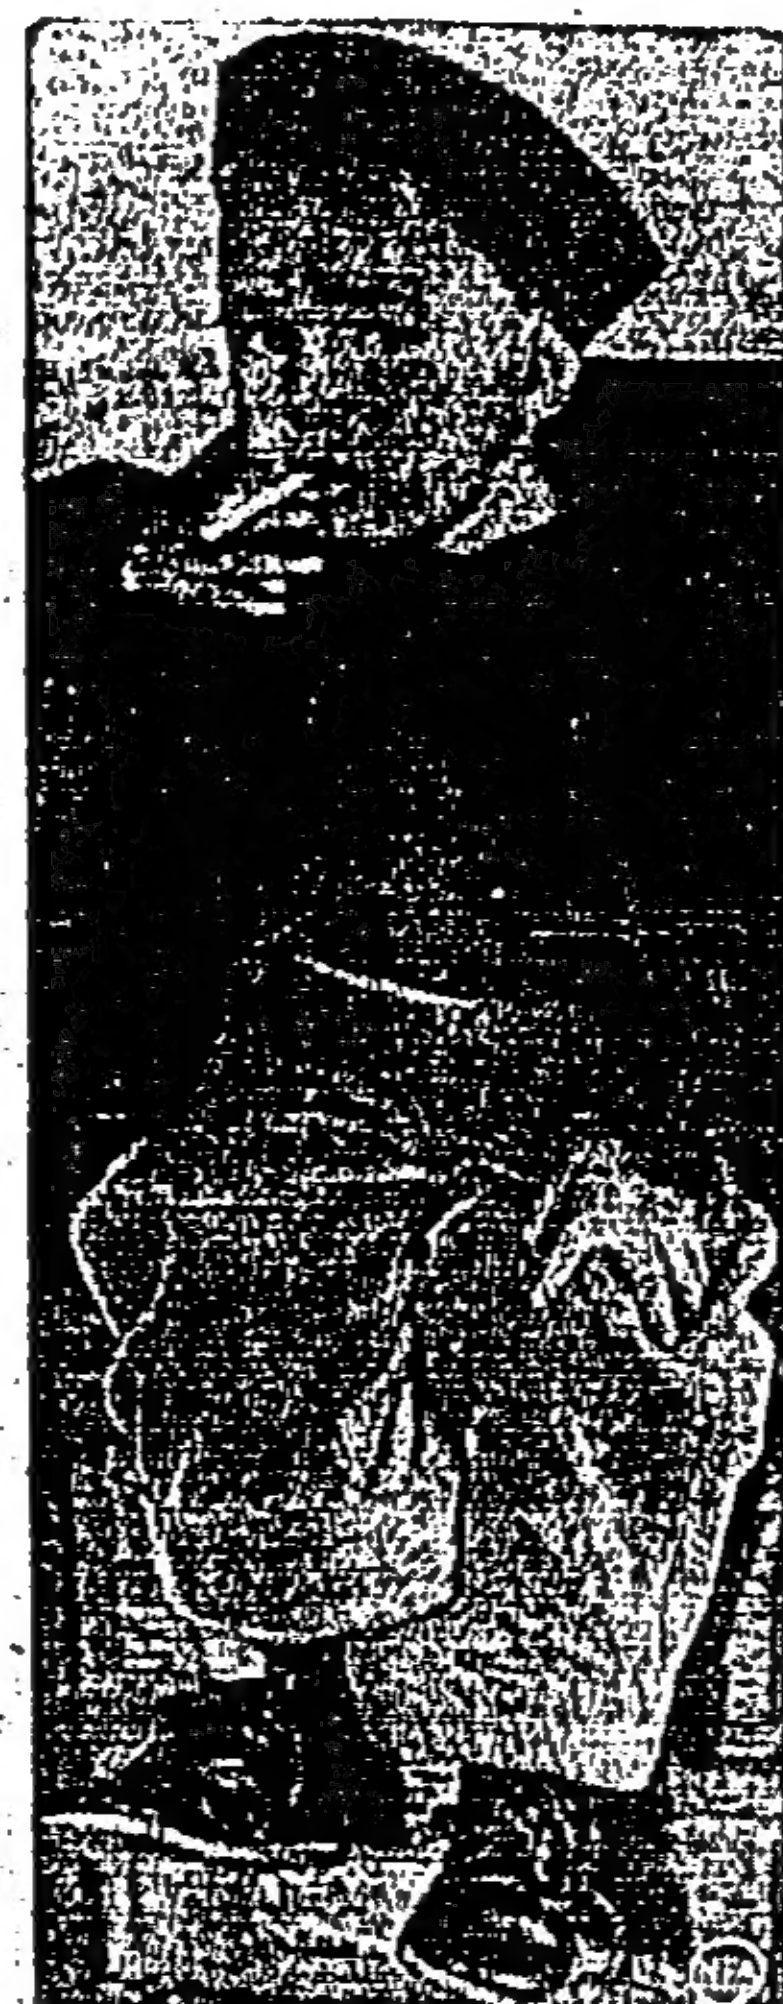

"I have been foretelling future events for years, and I have never before had to face such accusations."

The examining magistrate announced afterwards that the two women would be brought face to face in court next Wednesday.

This is to enable the magistrate to watch their reactions when challenging each other regarding the evidence.

COMPLAINTS BY GOVERNMENTS RUMOURED

Britain Said to Have 30,000 Addicts

Geneva, June 18.

THE League Secretariat have withdrawn the report of the opium section published at the end of last week, in which it was estimated that the total of drug addicts in the world was 2,000,000.

It is understood that the report has been withdrawn because several Governments complained that the Secretariat had grossly over-estimated the numbers of addicts in their countries.

The report was the first scientific attempt to estimate the number of addicts in the world. Between 350 and 500 tons of narcotics, it was stated, were used annually by the 2,000,000 addicts.

Annual consumption of drugs in Great Britain was put at five tons, and the number of confirmed addicts at 30,000.—Reuter.

BRITISH FILM SHOWING

NAVAL STORY AT THE KING'S.

A British warship formerly stationed in Hongkong is one of four cruisers lent by the British Admiralty for the making of "Brown on Resolution".

This film, which commences a two-day season this afternoon, is being screened in conformity with the new policy of the King's Theatre, whereby a certain percentage of British films will be shown each month.

It is the third British picture to be screened this month, the other two being "Fighting Stock" and "Where's George?"

Other British films scheduled for release in the near future include "The Gunner", "The Duke", and "The King's Theatre".

The percentage of British films screened each month will be regulated by the support accorded them by the local public.

It is interesting that the Management of the King's Theatre was pleased with the reception accorded "Fighting Stock" and "Where's George?", hence the decision to screen "Brown on Resolution" so soon after the other two pictures.

Betty Balfour and John Mills are featured in "Brown on Resolution", which is a wartime story of the British Navy. The Admiralty, for the first time in any dramatic film, gave the closest cooperation.

PETROL TAX RAISED HIGHER LICENCE FEES?

An increase in the duty per gallon of petrol by five cents, to 30 cents, was approved by the Legislative Council at their meeting yesterday.

The Colonial Treasurer, Hon. Mr. E. Taylor, C.M.G., explained that the increased tax should produce a further $30,000 for the remainder of the year, bringing the total receipts for 1936 to $700,000 as against the annual cost of roads of $600,000.

It was intimated by H.E. the Governor, in commending the resolution, that motor vehicle licence fees would probably be increased on July 1, 1937.

The Colonial Treasurer said: "I rise, Sir, to move the resolution standing in my name to increase the duty on light oils. The revenue for the year 1936 at the present rate of 25 cents per gallon was estimated last August at $670,000. The actual receipts received during 1935 amounted to $663,327. The receipts for this year up to the end of May amounted to $265,000, and if maintained to the end of the year at the same rate the revenue from this source for 1936 should be about $610,000, or $59,000 below the estimate. This may possibly be optimistic as although more motors are used the tendency is to employ cars of low petrol consumption more and more. Trade depression must also have its effects."

It is now proposed to increase the duty per gallon by 5 cents to 30 cents per gallon which should produce a further $30,000 for the remainder of the year making the total receipts under this item $700,000 for 1936.

Rough Estimate of Cost
As there is a direct relation between such a tax and the cost of roads I will give a rough estimate of the annual cost:

Personal Emoluments, etc. $151,000
Personal Emoluments, Administrative Staff 50,000
Recurrent Maintenance and Improvements 168,000
P.W.D. & Other Charges 43 1/2, on total expenditure 1926/27 211,000
Special Expenditure (1926/27) 17,000 on total expenditure 1926/27 228,000

(Pensions, Passengers and cost of housing the staff not included.)
Regarding the figure $168,000 for maintenance and improvements, I would point out that the several votes for this purpose were severely pruned last January when the financial position was examined, the total provision as allowed by the estimate being reduced by no less than $119,000. In 1933 the provision for recurrent maintenance and improvement amounted to $162,000 and this sum has been reduced yearly since till the above figure of $168,000 for 1936 has been arrived at. Since 1933 the length of the Hongkong roads has increased and, during the same period, the annual expenditure on maintenance has been greatly reduced. Our roads are deteriorating in consequence, and the Hon. D.W. Taylor, the slight additional duty of 5 cents per gallon on light oils estimated at the present rate of petrol consumption 40, produce $120,000 in a full year will go some way towards meeting the bill for necessary repairs.

I now move the following resolution:—Resolved, under Section 7 of the Motor Spirit Ordinance, 1930 (Ordinance No. 4 of 1930), that the duty on light oils as set forth in the Resolution passed by the Legislative Council on October 22, 1931, be increased to 30 cents per gallon.

Commended by Governor
H.E. the Governor: The taxation on motor transport in this Colony seems hitherto to have been exceedingly light in comparison with the current rates in other territories. My Executive Council therefore had before it the licence fee on motor vehicles. As a new registration period begins on July 1, little notice could have been given of any enhancement, and car-owners whose incomes have been reduced by the depression and who may be said to be living marginally, might not unreasonably have complained of a back of any forwarding; whereas under the slight increase of the petrol tax now proposed the owner, if he is living on a margin, adjust matters by using his car a little less. It may, however, prove necessary to budget for an increase in licence fees from July 1 of next year, and if so, proposals to that effect will be put forward in connection with the 1937 Estimates. In the United Kingdom the petrol tax is 8d. per gallon. In Malaya it is just under 1d. per gallon, and here it is about 4d. per gallon. The proposal is to increase it by 5 cents or less than a 1d.

The current rate of 25 cents was fixed in October, 1931, and among extra facilities provided for motorists since that date I may mention the new Peak Road and the new Vehicular Ferry. There is indeed a far greater range for motor transport than when our current petrol tax was adopted. I fancy that it will be generally agreed that the users of our motor roads should pay for them, and the figures just furnished by my Honorable Colleagues the Colonial Treasurer show that on our present standard of upkeep the proceeds of the petrol tax will just about foot the 1937 bill.

Unfortunately, however, the tax has also pointed out the item in that bill for maintenance ($168,000) is $119,000 less than the provision in the printed Estimates and nearly 20 per cent below what was provided in 1933. Retrenchment of this kind, if continuous, is bound to prove unemancipating; what is momentarily saved in repairs is only too soon outbalanced by what has to be spent on reconstruction. I therefore commend this resolution for your support; I do not believe that the 5 cent rise in duty will constitute a serious hardship for anybody, but I do believe it necessary for the maintenance of a reasonable standard in our vehicular communications. I have left out of account altogether our expenditure on traffic regulation, because I propose to take that into account when we review our registration tariff in connection with the 1937 Budget.

ETHIOPIA'S FATE

After a perusal of the statements of British and French foreign policy, with particular reference to the failure of the League to curb Italian aggression, it is difficult to resist the conclusion that Ethiopia is to be definitely sacrificed. Whilst Mr. Baldwin declares that Britain has no intention of condoning Italy's action, and M. Delbos asserts that French policy is to discourage aggression, the stark fact remains that Italy is in virtual possession of Ethiopia, and seemingly nothing is to be done about it. All that emerges from the British and French statements is that there is to be an effort to reform the League, in the hope that it may become effective in future cases, and that France is devising a plan which will, it is thought, preserve the peace of Europe. The importance, and the necessity, of working out a formula which will prevent another world war cannot be over-stated, but what guarantee is there that small nations, such as Ethiopia, will not in future fall a victim to ambitious military Powers? Mr. Attlee rightly says there will be no security for any League State if Italy is permitted to triumph this time, whilst Sir Archibald Sinclair pointedly asserts that the attitude taken up by the British Government puts a premium on successful aggression and makes the world safe for Dictators. Mr. Baldwin admits that the League has failed in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute—just as it failed to stop Japanese aggression in the Far East. Yet he persists that British policy must be based on the League. It is true that he foresees the possibility of a policy of isolation by Britain, in the event of the League definitely coming to an end, but it is difficult for the average man to perceive the utility of attempting to keep the League alive in face of the admitted disinclination of important members to operate the machinery which it provides—machinery which could, without a shadow of doubt, have been made effective if strongly enforced in the early days of the

THE social snobbery which regards a large family as either ridiculous or vicious seems now to be creeping into legislation.

The small family—consisting of the Only Child, who is to have a first-class chance in life and a pony to ride, or at most the family of two, which in American ads, gives Junior a little sister for company—is now firmly established as the rule in most Aencia-avenues and in many cock-eyed societies of geneticians.

NOTES OF THE DAY

A sinister threat to China's independence of a different kind from that of Japanese armies was revealed during the recent meetings of the League of Nations Advisory Committee on the Traffic in Opium. This is the astounding amount of dangerous drugs, chiefly from Japan, which was imported into the country last year. In regard to heroin alone it is stated that from 25 to 50 times the quantity needed to meet the entire legitimate requirements of the world were imported. Of one drug it is stated that the imports were sufficient to give between two and four thousand million doses. In other words it was sufficient to create drug addicts of a very considerable proportion of China's teeming millions. This may well prove a very serious threat to Chinese independence, for it cannot but be a danger to a country that the morale of a considerable section of its inhabitants should be undermined by drug addiction. There is something sinister in the thought that Japan may be deliberately taking advantage of this situation as being likely to further her own political aims for the control of China. Whether this is so or not it is a fact that most of the drugs come from Japan and the League's Committee recently declared that it was "again struck by the inadequacy of the sentences passed by Japanese courts on convicted Japanese traffickers".

It may be that one of the most effective means at the present moment by which the League can defend China's independence and integrity, as provided for in the Nine Power Treaty is by helping China to fight this cancer in her body politic. Of equal importance is the constructive work which is being done by various technical organisations of the League to assist in the national reconstruction of China.

Italo-Ethiopian trouble. In this connection, the fact that Britain is engaged in exchanges of view with France is of interest, but it is difficult to realise why greater pressure, with a view to united action, could not have been applied before the Italian invaders triumphed. Mr. Baldwin's statement that nothing but military action can now make any difference in the status of Italy and Ethiopia, coupled with the obvious fact that no such action is intended, leaves a definite impression that Italy is to be permitted to enjoy her conquest without obstruction of any kind. Admittedly, she may not find the victory all she hopes, for the big problem of colonisation still remains ahead, but there will be few champions of the rights of small nations who will regard the present attitude of Britain and of France with any real satisfaction.

It seems to be Bad breeding
to breed

government have decided to pay no relief to an out-of-work labourer in respect of more than three children.

Of course, the Government do not say so in so many words. Governments don't do such things. What they say is that they will pay fourteen shillings to the labourer, seven shillings to his wife and three shillings to each child.

Then further down the Bill you see that they will pay a maximum of only thirty shillings to any one family. If you work out that little sum you will see that three children is the limit in respect of relief.

(Quite right, too, says Aencia-avenue; disgraceful that a man should have more than three children if he cannot support them. Such breeding is just bad breeding.)

All bunk, say I. A man should have as many children as he likes. Besides, if any man in the world could found a large family with the perfect assurance that he would never be out of work it should be the agricultural labourer in Britain, which imports £350,000,000 of the food that he could largely grow.

LORD MARLEY IN the House of Lords took up the case of the labourer with a family as big as six.

He is a Socialist whom his colleagues in the past have suspected of being a Communist. So he did not go as far as the Fascist Mussolini, who wants unlimited families, but he went twice as far as the Government actuaries.

Where these actuaries apparently regard it as a crime to have more than three children, Lord Marley regards it as a crime to have more than six. But I suspect he is merely working to the rule of thumb plan of the Socialist Party often noticed by Ministers, which is simply this: When the Government offers any kind of relief, double it.

Anyhow, the honest labourer and his sonsie wife are to get no credit from Whitehall for a quiverful of children—even although children be like arrows in the hands of a giant.

THERE WAS ALSO last year the interesting question of the Overcrowding Act. This lays down penalties if a family exceed a Whitehall formula of so many children to the number of rooms of so many square feet each.

In tens of thousands of three-room houses here again the State limits the family to three, and one of them has to sleep in the kitchen unless a bountiful Providence should also become considerate to parents and arrange that their three children shall all be of the same sex and shall never grow older than the age of ten.

In that case they could sleep in one room and the mother at night might bend over her mischievous clutch as she does in the tender Scottish poem, saying: "Oh, bairnies, cuddle doon."

If there are two girls and a boy, then the boy gets the kitchen and the girls the bedroom. Or the calm maturity of the girls wise and confident in the nurture learn young to be at home in the kitchen.

And if the parents who know of a better arrangement try to sleep one of the children in the same room as themselves they will find themselves in a large and roomy court of law with a risk of being ejected from their hereditary and paying a £2 fine.

None but a lawyer could raise a large family to-day in humble circumstances, and who ever heard of such a lawyer?

RECENTLY THE House of Commons were debating a Bill to reduce the number of cotton spindles in Lancashire. They were pruning the over-rich growth which sprang from the brain of Richard Arkwright.

For many generations his invention of the spinning frame scattered prosperity through Lancashire and founded British supremacy. Richard was the third child of parents in humble circumstances.

When they had reached the round dozen you may imagine the local sanitary inspector calling his family. Is the eighteenth and saying: "Hi! Your family is always vigorous? It is certain too big for this house." Imagine that intellectual power and real genius have frequently been found right down at the bottom of a large family of nonentities.

It is true that many first-born have been distinguished. There is a theory that the first-born of able and intelligent parents will must readily reproduce their fine qualities, but that the first-born of humble parents will himself be humble, although in the process of raising a dozen they may produce one who will soar aloft.

Eldest children are commonly thought to be highly emotional and not over-energetic. If that is so, heaven help us twenty years hence when we are dominated by hordes of only children. But there is no exact science in these matters.

Every rule can be instantly contradicted out of one's own experience. What? No genius among men who never knew brother or sister? What about Julius Caesar, Leonardo da Vinci, Baldwin and Ramsay MacDonald?

IN ORDINARY families the birth of a second child knocks the first off his pedestal, and that early fall does him good. Also he ceases to be "baby," and probably becomes a plain, sensible person, unsung and unsung. No. 7 or No. 8 in a large family remains "baby" into adolescence, and bitterly he resents these memories and eagerly he applies his energies to grow above his elders.

This at least is certain on this subject: that no school, university, club or society will ever replace in an only child the family fireside as a sprouting-ground of young emotions.

And, greatly daring, I would say this is certain: you never met the middle-aged mother of one child who did not wish she had half a dozen.

William Barkley

them replying: "But we want just one more." "Nonsense," says the Inspector. "You can't have little Richard!"

I calculate that the humble Arkwright family would now require for their family under the Ministry of Health rules a nine-room house with each room floor seventy square feet. Impossible for Mother Arkwright under these rules to give birth to a genius.

As for Caruso, the singer: the mind boggles at the size of mansion that his mother would have had to order unless she had got the older boys off her hands fast. For he was the eighteenth child of twenty-one.

No doubt all such legislation has a splendid purpose and is inspired by the highest motives of abating the slum. My only point is that the authorities to-day never envisage the needs of a large family by building a large house, while they lay down housing rules which in time will prevent the creation of a large family.

DO WE GAIN OR lose by abolishing the long string of children which so many worthy parents have regarded with pride as their whole life's work?

Certainly much virtue and variety will go out of our lives, both local and national, if there are fewer and finally no children born of parents who have passed from the tumultuous years into the calm maturity of the grown wise and confident in the nurture of their offspring until they introduce them into a household of children who will soon lack some sense into him.

There is quite a literature demonstrating that the eighth child is the best of the family in brains and in physique.

It derives, I believe, from King David, and the theory was buttressed by the noise made by another eighth child, Napoleon Bonaparte (whom our countrymen, however, in his life regarded as a pestilence).

THERE IS AN OLD Scottish saying that the seventh child of a seventh child has the second sight. An old Scots-woman who told me this said it was true of two people she knew.

I don't know if there are special characteristics for ninth, tenth, eleventh children and so forth. I did know an extremely hale old clergyman who read a small Bible without glasses at the age of round dozen you may imagine the local sanitary inspector calling his family. Is the eighteenth and saying: "Hi! Your family is always vigorous? It is certain too big for this house." Imagine that intellectual power and real genius have frequently been found right down at the bottom of a large family of nonentities.

It is true that many first-born have been distinguished. SHIP WITH UNWANTED CARGO OF MUNITIONS COMING TO H.K.

Tangled Odyssey Of Munitions For Ethiopia

"Telegraph" Special Representative

LA SANTA MARIA, the British ship with a cargo of munitions that nobody wanted, is coming to Hongkong.

This is the latest episode in a tangled Odyssey which has led La Santa Maria and her crew of 20 British sailors from Helsingfors to Gibraltar, from Dungeness to Lundy Island, and from Alderney to Sark and Guernsey in search of a dumping place for £20,000 worth of arms and high explosives.

The armaments, originally shipped by a Finnish firm at Helsingfors, were destined for Ethiopia, but the La Santa Maria had only reached Gibraltar when Italy completed the conquest of the African nation.

Delivery of the armaments to Ethiopia was therefore impossible. The ship turned about and attempted to head the explosives in Europe.

No nation would permit them to be landed. The Helsingfors firm were, it is understood, seriously considering dumping the cargo at sea, when hostilities threatened between North and South China.

Instructions to make for Hongkong were given by the shippers and not by the owners of the vessel, the former having a charter lien regarding the ultimate destination.

La Santa Maria carries 200 incendiary bombs, 40,000 rounds of ammunition, three aeroplanes, two tons of T. N. T. and three German pilots.

For over a week La Santa Maria sailed between Gibraltar and Britain seeking in vain for permission to land its perilous cargo. Tangier, London, Guernsey, Lundy Island and Sark were all tried in turn.

The cargo is worth between £15,000 and £20,000.

FOR ABYSSINIA

The vessel left Finland on April 20, the munitions (of Finnish and Belgian manufacture) being intended for Abyssinia. By the time La Santa Maria reached Gibraltar the war was over and the arms no longer required.

The Home Office refused permission to land the munitions in England, and the ship's skipper, Captain P. P. Allen, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, then tried to deposit the cargo at Tangier.

There it was actually landed, but had to be restowed on board.

The owners were then informed Lundy Island might take the cargo, but once more the Home Office stepped in.

Sark being next suggested, and the Home Office raising no objection, La Santa Maria changed her course once more and sailed for the Channel Islands.

General Broadbent, Lieutenant-Governor of Guernsey, called a special sitting of the Royal Court to pass an emergency ordinance prohibiting the landing of explosives or ammunition in the islands without the permission of the Lieutenant-Governor or the Royal Court.

As the telephone cable to Sark was out of order a copy of the ordinance was rushed to the Seneschal of Sark by motorboat.

La Santa Maria, formerly the Tees Steam and Shipping Co. Ltd., was bought from the Tees by the Home Office.

At the end of last year by a London firm of freight contractors for £4,400. She was renamed, and on a previous voyage last December carried war material to Abyssinia.

Backyard Aviation Can Be Yours

AUTOGYRO FOR SALE

ANYONE in Hongkong with sufficient capital, nerve and a pilot's certificate can make a backyard airdrome for himself and use it—for in the hangar at Kaitak waiting for a buyer is one of the only two autogyros in the Far East.

The queer looking machine is owned by the Far Eastern Aviation Company, who brought it out from England in November, 1934—crashed it only about six weeks later when it was on one of its first flights after being assembled, and then sent it back to England for repairs and reconditioning.

The damage was not serious. The undercarriage was wrecked, one of the gyro blades was damaged and there were a few minor breakages. In November 1935 the machine was brought back to Hongkong, re-assembled, and since then has been lying idle in the hangar.

FLIGHT TO KWANGSI

Only one long flight has been undertaken by the machine since then—that was a trip up country to Kwangsi; it behaved very well and proved highly successful. But so far no buyer has come forward to relieve the Far East Aviation Company of its £1,650 machine.

"The autogyro was brought out with the intention of selling it to someone or some firm who would use it for flying into the interior where there was no regular airdrome and where the ability to land on a stump, or something slightly larger, would prove a real asset."

It is able to cruise at over 80 m.p.h. and its top speed is given as well over the 100 m.p.h. mark.

DOGS AND TENTS NEW REGULATIONS FOR BEACHES

The Legislative Council yesterday passed the first reading of a Bill prohibiting dogs from bathing beaches unless on a lead, and also prohibiting the erection of private tents except in specially allotted areas. It was stated that Government had no intention of allotting such an area at Repulse Bay, where there is already ample accommodation for bathers.

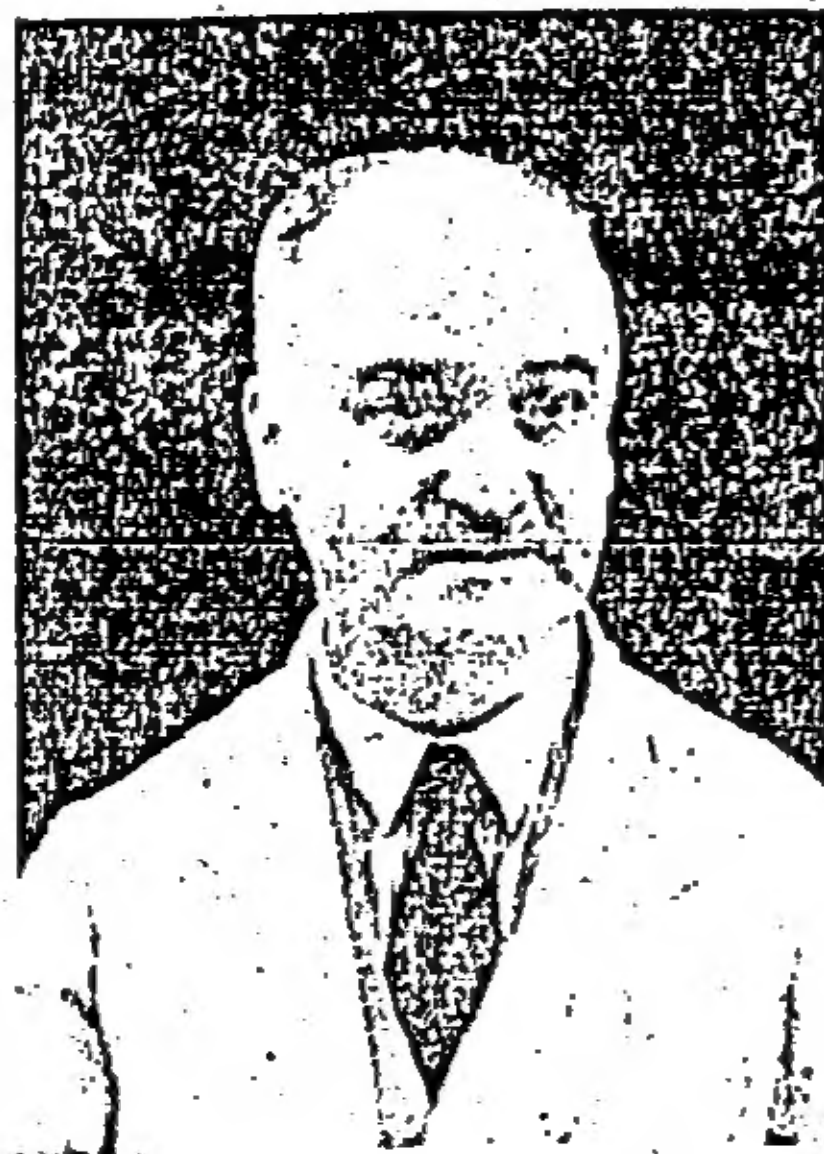

The Attorney General, moving the first reading, said: "I rise to move the First Reading of a Bill to regulate certain pleasure grounds, bathing places and places of public resort. This Bill was published for information in the Gazette of the 5th June and the regulations for bathing places on pages 13 and 14 of the Bill have attracted some notice in the Press."

Nuisance on Beaches. With regard to the suggested by-law 1 (2) it will be noticed that dogs (except on a lead) will not be allowed upon the bathing beaches set out on page 4 or in the water at or near these beaches. It is the opinion of the Government that dogs are a nuisance on these beaches and the question of prohibiting them, even when on a lead, can be considered in committee on the Second Reading.

Another regulation to which I think I should draw attention is regulation 2(4) on the top of page 14, from which it will be seen that private tents on the bathing beaches will only be allowed in special areas allotted and marked off for them. It is not the intention of the Government to allot any such area at Repulse Bay, where there is ample accommodation for bathers who have not matsheds, nor is it the intention of the Government to allow the erection of tents in front of the matsheds at any bathing beach.

The Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

POPULAR COUPLE LEAVING

Mr. Hamilton

MANY YEARS IN COLONY
MR. AND MRS. A. T. HAMILTON

HONGKONG will be losing one of its best-known educationists and one who can be described as one of the pioneers of Association football in the Colony when Mr. Andrew Todd Hamilton leaves for Home to-morrow, on retirement, after over 33 years' residence here.

He will be accompanied by Mrs. Hamilton, who has taken a keen interest in social work in the Colony for many years past.

Mr. Hamilton arrived in the Colony on June 1, 1903, for the Ellis Kadoorie School, then a private school. He joined the Government in 1910 and has been in various schools since, being headmaster of the Ellis Kadoorie Indian School for the past eight years.

In his early days here, he lived in Kowloon and was one of the original members of the Kowloon Cricket Club.

POPULAR SPORTSMAN

His favourite sport was soccer, and he played against Shanghai in 1908 and 1913. He did a great deal of fastening soccer amongst the schools in Hongkong, was on the council of the Hongkong Football Association for many years and is a past President of the H.K. Football Club. His favourite recreations now are golf and lawn bowls. At the latter game he has been a regular member of the Yacht Club team for many years. He is a member of the following clubs:—Hongkong Club, Royal Hongkong Yacht Club, Royal Hongkong Golf Club, Hongkong Jockey Club, and the Hongkong Football Club.

Mr. Hamilton was a very ardent volunteer in pre-war days. He went Home in 1917 and joined up, and saw service in France, returning to the Colony in 1919. For many years he has been a leading light in the Masonic world and has held the highest offices in the various Lodges of which he is a member. He was made a Justice of the Peace last year.

In the social life of the Colony, also, Mr. Hamilton has won much popularity, being a man of sterling character and of a most urbane disposition.

MRS. HAMILTON

Hongkong will say good-bye with feelings of real regret when Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton depart, and their friends will wish them many years of happiness and prosperity in the Old Country. Mrs. Hamilton arrived in Hongkong some seventeen years after her husband, and during her 16 years has led a very active life, her services being greatly in demand for social work.

When Lady Clementi started the Cheero Club, Mrs. Hamilton was one of her original lieutenants and she has greatly enjoyed the work among the Service men. Lately she has devoted her energies to working for the Busy Bees, an organisation which does a lot of good work in a quiet way and raises considerable sums for charity.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton have been staunch supporters of the Kennedy Road Union Church for many years, and have always taken a very active part in its work. Mrs. Hamilton has always been a member of the Ladies' Committee and at various times has been Secretary and Chairman, while Mr. Hamilton has served on the Committee of Management and has held various offices.

They are leaving by the Empress of Japan to-morrow, and after visiting relatives in Canada, and the States expect to get home just before Christmas.

PRESENTATION

At the conclusion of the bowls match on Saturday, between the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club and Craighen-gower, Mr. B. E. Maughan, on behalf of members of the former club, presented Mr. Hamilton with a bowl, a travelling case, and in a happy speech, eulogised Mr. Hamilton's association with them, to which Mr. Hamilton replied, expressing his keen regret at having to sever his connection with them and the game in Hongkong.

Yesterday afternoon, the Staff of the Indian School entertained Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton at a farewell tea-party at the Gloucester Hotel, when Mr. Abdullah, the senior master presided.

Incurred next year for the celebrations in connection with the Coronation of King Edward VIII. Hongkong Government will probably pay part of the expenses of officials who will proceed to London to represent the Colony at the celebrations on May 12.

Why Local Banks Failed Last Year

POSITION IS HEALTHY IN 1936

Failure last year of two important Chinese banking establishments in Hongkong was attributed by the Colonial Treasurer, Hon. Mr. Edwin Taylor to the rise in exchange during the last six months of the year.

The Bank of Canton closed in September. It has not re-opened. The National Commercial and Savings Bank, which has re-opened, failed shortly afterwards.

Referring to the failures in his Annual Report, the Hon. Mr. Taylor said:

The Bank of Canton... bank did a very considerable business in the remittances to China of the savings of overseas Chinese.

The general practice of payees of these drafts, who are widely scattered throughout the country, is to retain the drafts until for some purpose they need the money. As a consequence outstandings, especially when local exchange is low, are generally very heavy.

In this case the rise in exchange resulted in a flood of demands for payment for reinvestment in foreign currencies. This, coupled with heavy drawings by other branches on the local concern proved too much for its cash resources, and consequent losses to the Chinese creditors were considerable.

N. C. BANK. The other failure, that of the National Commercial and Savings Bank was due to the mass logic of small depositors, who readily assume that the difficulties of one bank necessarily concern others.

Broadly considered, its failure was due to investing short-term savings deposits in long term advances or in securities not immediately convertible. This bank has re-organised and recently re-opened.

The native banks working privately on Chinese domestic lines—and they are a considerable number and influence—have been singularly free from difficulties.

The banking interests of the Colony have never been sounder than they were at the close of the year, but the capital investment they represent has hitherto depended mainly on returns from exchange and bullion operations.

The management of the dollar must inevitably bring about a serious decline in profits from this source.

Silver Jubilee Celebrations Cost $42,587

Celebration in Hongkong last year of the Silver Jubilee of His late Majesty, King George V cost the Hongkong Government only $42,587.

This figure was disclosed in the Annual Report of the Colonial Treasurer, Hon. Mr. Edwin Taylor.

It is unofficially anticipated that a much larger expenditure will be

GRANT ONLY "SEEDED" PLAYER TO DROP SET

Absence Of Surprises At Wimbledon

TUCKEY'S SPLENDID WIN OVER DES TREMEAU

After Tuesday's disconcerting upsets in the ladies singles championship, Wimbledon results yesterday continued on more normal lines. All of the eight "seeded" players in the men's singles won fairly comfortably. Bryan Grant of America had to concede the first set to Maurice Delofoed the English county player, but Perry, Von Cramm, Crawford, Austin, Allison, Quist and Budge won in straight sets.

Both England and America lost important representatives who were forced to retire through injuries. Gene Mako of United States conceded a walk-over due to a strained muscle, says Reuter, while G. P. Hughes is feeling the effects of slight heart strain and is saving himself for the Davis Cup Challenge Round. He has therefore scratched from the singles.

A United Press message adds that Jean Brugnon, one of the famous ex-world French "Three Musketeers" also withdrew and gave J. Lesueur his opponent a walk-over after he had played four sets.

Two prominent English girls were eliminated during the day's play which continued in fine weather and before a large crowd.

Miss Dearnan of Wightman Cup fame bowed before Madame Mathieu, leading French exponent, while Miss "Billy" York, whose recent success in the French Championships brought her into great prominence, fell a victim to the cleverness of Mme. Moullemeester of Belgium.

Mlle. Jedzejowska continued her winning way by removing Miss Nellie Adamson, the Belgian champion.

Second round successes were also gained by Senorita Anita Lizana of Chile, Mme. Sperling (formerly Fraulein Krahwinkel the 1931 finalist) and Miss Kay Stammers, British "hope."

ITOH STILL DRILLIANT

In the men's singles, Charles E. Hare, young English player, offered fine opposition to Jack Crawford, but found the Australian at his best. Von Cramm, second favourite, toyed with L. Hecht the Czechoslovakian while "Bunny" Austin played classical tennis to eliminate Clifford Sproule, manager of the Australian Davis Cup team.

E. Rih, Japan's only representative this year, advanced to the third round with a brilliant victory over Hans Haanes of Holland. According to a Reuter report Rih smashed wonderfully and outplayed the Hollander. Itoh exploited his opponent's weak backhand and puzzled him with his slow, but tricky, service. Perry was never fully extended to beat Chartkavanji although the Siamese Cambridge Blue gave a most promising display, revealing a magnificent backhand drive. Perry tried to entice the Siamese to the net in order to pull out his famous passing strokes, but Chartkavanji refused to be drawn and timed his net excursions so well that he usually scored with ace volleys.

Perry, however, was always able to increase the pace to score game points and if anything the match served to enhance Perry's prospects.

VERITY & GOVER NOT SO HOT

ENGLAND'S NO. 1 BOWLER IS FARNES

OBSERVES "FOUR COUNTIES"

The chief trouble about this alleged search for bowlers is that the cricket-adoring public either entirely ignores, or is blissfully ignorant of, the fact that these are not Australian Test batsmen that Gover and Verity are getting out and, in fact, are many of them three and four classes below that of Bradman and company.

We merely throw dust in our eyes if we try to persuade ourselves that the "talk" of Glamorgan or Kent or Essex, for example, are in the same parish as Australia's first seven batsmen with their tails up and waiting.

The amazing part of the whole story is that lots of people either seeing or reading that Gover and Verity have routed Glamorgan, Surrey and Kent must ipso facto think them the "goods," and, what is more, the first-rank goods for the Australian campaign.

BEATS ME

Sit where you like, in pavilion, in cheapest seats, in train, in tube, or in cinema, you will hear the same story.

As each useful analysis is handed us by Verity, or Gover, or Who-You-Will, his name is on everybody's lips as that of the man for the War in the Antipodes. Why is this? I confess it has me beat.

Cannot the amateur selectors see the wood for the trees? Similarly, a useful batsman—no more and no less—like Maurice Turnbull is walked into the side for Australia, and not only that but the explanation as well, because he gets a century against Yorkshire.

A great test to be sure, and to pass which many a player might give the top joint of his best first finger, but such a score has little to do with the likelihood of success on an Australian tour.

CHARMING

I am not crabbing Turnbull. A very long way from that. A charming fellow, a good cricketer, and one who Glamorgan can thank his lucky stars that he was not born in Middlesex, or resided in Lancashire or Leicestershire. But Test teams are of eleven entities only, and you cannot, therefore, include in them all the "charming fellows" in England. Now, can you?

I want to know when, in a representative match in this country—the highest of all tests in cricket, especially if the match was a Lord's—Maurice Turnbull has ever "delivered the bacon"?

Naturally Glamorgan and South Wales adore him. So does Bristol love Wally. Canterbury worship Woolley, and so on. But not until the man, whoever he is, has delivered the goods during a famine or an unexpected shortage, is he of any real use to the XI. of England.

There is no question at all that the fast bowler who of all others has most impressed the selectors is Kenneth Farnes.

HE WAS "SOFT"

Taking all the factors into consideration his was the best performance recently at Brentwood. While Gover had the weaker batting to bowl against plus the valuable "first go" which there was a veneer of dew

YESTERDAY'S MATCHES FOR BOWLS TITLE

ALVES ALSO ADVANCES

L. A. Gutierrez (Recreio), winner of the title in 1932, defeated F. X. M. da Silva a club-mate, by 21 shots to 10 in the second round of the Lawn Bowls Open Singles championship on the Kowloon Dock Recreation Club green yesterday afternoon. The game ended on the 19th head. The loser had three threes in his total, and the winner scored the majority of his shots with singles.

H. A. Alves, also of the Club de Recreio, who won the semi-finals last year, defeated G. E. F. Thompson by 21 shots to 11 on the same green. Thompson led by five shots on the seventh head, but thereafter Alves gained the upperhand up to the 19th head when the match concluded. A fairly good game was witnessed on the Kowloon Bowling G.C. green when N. J. Bobbington, of the Kowloon Cricket Club, defeated T. R. Hunter, of the Police R.C., by 21-10 on the 25th head. The winner at one stage led 13-3 but it took him five heads before he could pass the 13 mark.

On the Kowloon Cricket Club green, C. H. Basto, of the Recreio, defeated S. M. White, of the Kowloon B.C.C., by the score of 22-18, the game ending on the 23rd head.

Meeting on the Recreio green at King's Park, A. S. Russell, of the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, defeated S. J. Houghton, of the Kowloon C.C., 21-13.

HONGKONG GAMES

W. V. Field defeated L. H. Collyer by 22 shots to 16 on the Police R.C. green. The winner led all the way, and scored 2 fours, one on the fifth head and the other on the 8th. The game ended on the 22nd head.

On the Civil Service C.C. green, A. S. Gomes defeated H. Overy by 21 shots to 12. Gomes, who was in fine form, scored one 4 on the 10th head. Overy led in the first two heads, but after he had allowed Gomes to gain the lead on the next, his play deteriorated and he trailed behind throughout the remaining heads. The game finished on the 20th head.

J. Fraser proved too strong for R. Ellis on the Hongkong Football Club green, winning by 21 to 13 shots. The winner led in the first ten heads, but after that Ellis took the lead only to lose it again after two heads. Fraser scored one 4 on the 10th head. After leading for the bigger part of the game, J. Hoosen lost to W. Mulcahy by 21 shots to 14 on the Craigengower green. The game ended on the 19th head.

In a Pairs Championship match played on the Kowloon C.C. green, S. A. Bright and J. E. Henson, of the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, defeated F. A. Machado and H. F. Rozario, of the Recreio, 24-14. The game was postponed from last week when the Bowling Green pair were leaving 19-11.

PLAYER WITHDRAWS

The match between D. Rumjahn and J. Watson was postponed owing to the indisposition of the former. This match will take place on Wednesday, July 1 on the Police Green.

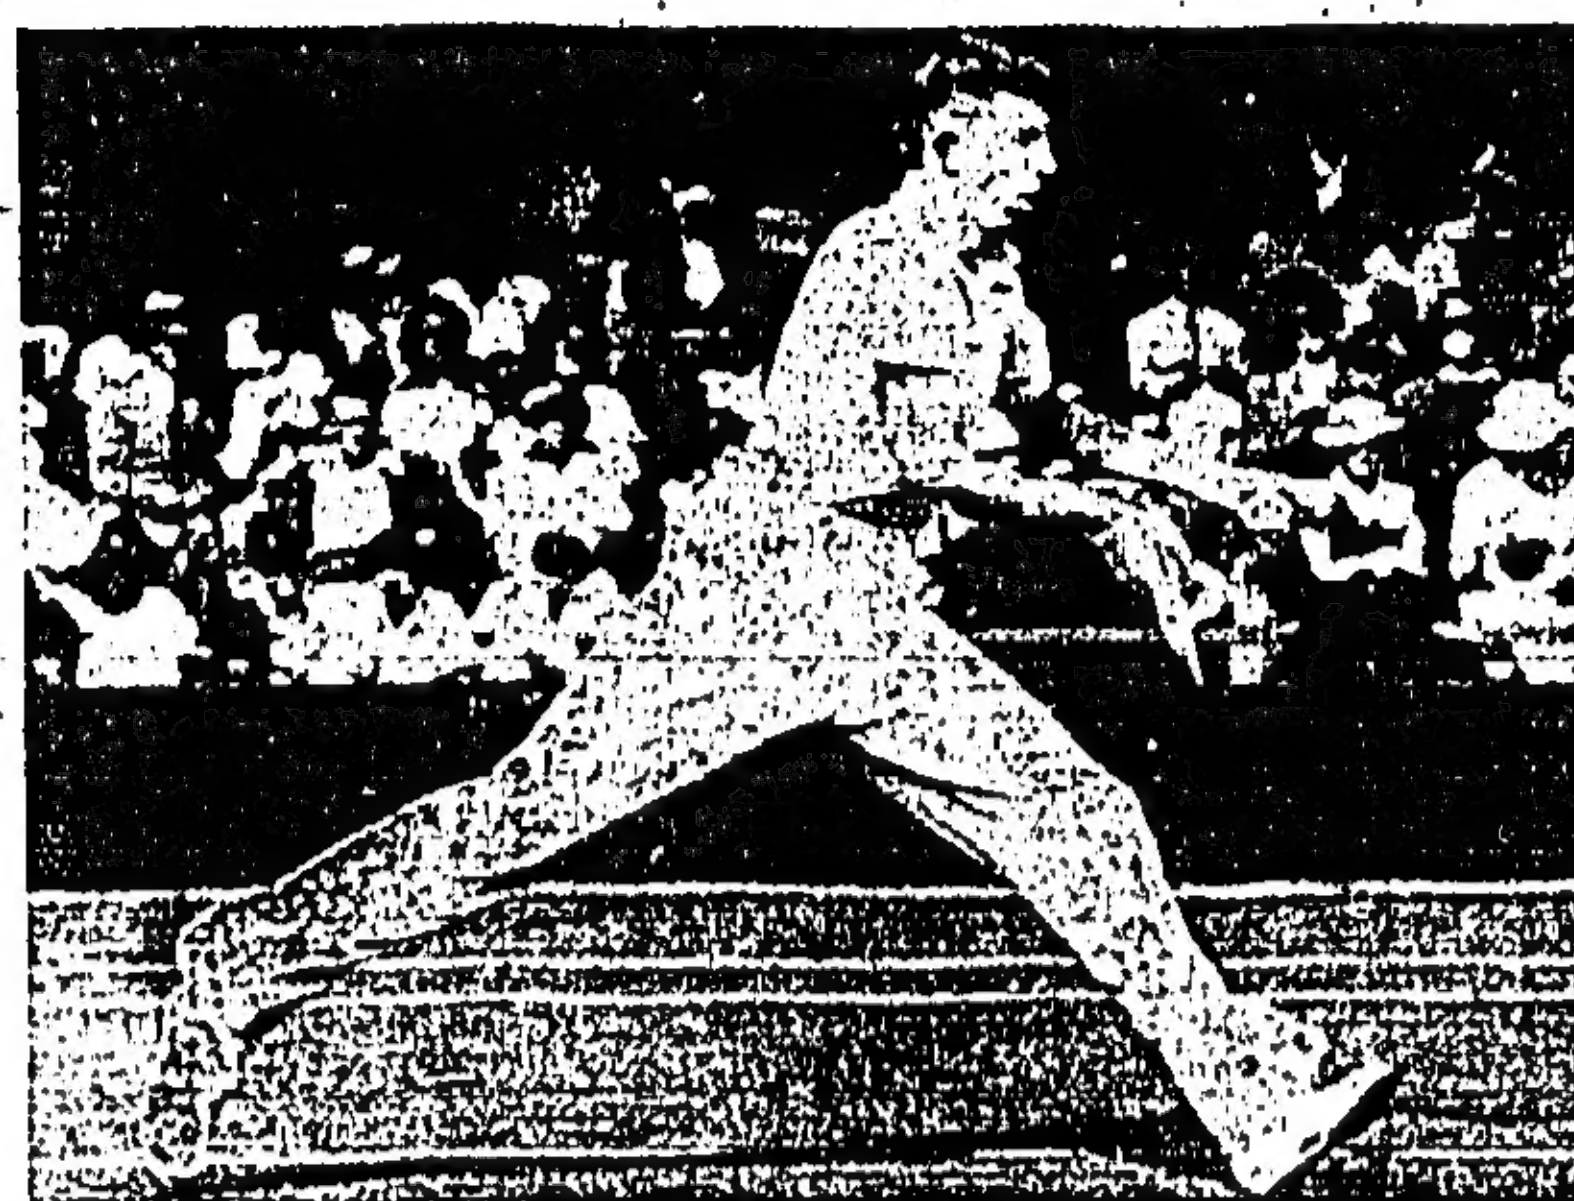

As T. Robson is paying a short visit to Singapore next week, his match against W. K. Way has been brought forward to to-morrow on the Football Club green. It was originally fixed for Monday.

E. el Arculli has withdrawn from the Pairs Championship owing to ill health and his place is being taken by K. M. Omar who will play with D. Rumjahn against T. Coleman and G. N. Mitchell on the Kowloon C.C. Green to-morrow.

FOOTBALLER WHO BECAME AN M.A.

Job In Steel Works*

(By G.W.R. Smith)

ONE William George McMenemy, twenty-three years old, professional footballer, former steelworker, Master of Arts, at twenty-one, of Glasgow University, walked into my room. McMenemy, who last season played at left half for Queen of the South, the Scottish First Division club, had a story of courage and determination to tell. It makes good reading.

When he was a boy of seventeen at Motherwell Higher Grade School both his parents died. He took his Higher Grade certificate and then set out to look for work. Jobs were scarce, but he was taken on at a local steel foundry.

A talented footballer, he had played for Lanarkshire boys several times, and it was natural for him to keep up the game while he was earning his own living.

One day a Celtic "scout" spotted young McMenemy. He was immediately signed and "placed" with St. Anthony's, a Scottish junior club. This gave him his change. He played football as a professional to cover the expenses of his education at Glasgow University, where he aimed to take his degree.

With St. Anthony's, he became one of the most promising players in Scottish junior football and had repeated offers to cross the Border. Then came another blow from Fate—right on the chin!

Playing with St. Anthony's he broke his ankle. It was a hard fight. Doctors thought he would never kick a ball again. Six months out of the game, then Celtic released him.

There was one thing to comfort him. He took his Master of Arts degree with flying colours after three years' study—the minimum time.

His luck kept in. He was signed by Hamilton Academicals, another first-class team. Then came a fall. Back to Glasgow Perthshire, a junior club.

He attracted more attention with this club than when he was with St. Anthony's, but still did not want to cross the Border. Finally he signed

Verity And Gover Not So Hot

or sweat on a firm pitch, and both he and Nichols had had three weeks' match practice. Farnes was "soft," and had not seen a batsman since 1934.

On these facts alone he and not the other two, well as they bowled, should have had the best Press. But there was an untutored tendency to crab Farnes, who, taking all-out fast people each at his best, is easily the best of the lot.

HE'S GOT RHYTHM
Make no blunder about it, all being well, employers patriotic and all that, Farnes will go to Australia as No. 1 shock trooper.

Of all our fast bowlers his is the style; he has the rhythm plus the bounce from a good length. None other can make the good length one "perch," as Bill Bradley used to say, so often as Farnes can.

That much allowed, one problem of our selectors has already settled itself.

The only doubt about him is whether he makes the ball "run away" enough. He has, to a greater degree than his rivals, the faculty of compelling the batsman to play at him. A great asset that.

Whoever saw the batsman allowed to leave Tom Richardson and Lockwood alone. Shrewsbury, or was it Billy Gunn? tried on that game—only once though—at the Oval. And down went the citadel.

The better the batsman the more likely Farnes to get wickets.

It was freely and adversely commented on at Brentwood how slacking some of the Indian team seemed to be taking the match.

NOT JUSTIFIED
As an example, in spite of their bad failure in the first innings, only Amar Nath, who made 107, and Palla, who made 44, took the trouble to have a little batting practice before their second innings.

I should not have thought that the results of the tour to date would justify several of the team in thinking that they are not in need of as much batting practice as they can get.

I do not regret having styled Amar Nath the Trumper of our visiting side. His 130 out of 174 from the bat at Brentwood was an innings. Trumper would have played, and would have been proud to play.

Lucky for Essex, indeed, that three catches, two of them snorters and one of them off Cutmore before he had scored, were dropped soon after tea.

for Queen of the South.

At the end of last season McMenemy, who had never been to London, decided he would try fresh fields, so he packed his bag and came south.

He has no definite plans. He is willing to take on anything. Don't be mistaken—his football is not finished by a long way. I could mention several southern clubs who would gladly sign him.

"THAT'S the FINEST SHAVE I Ever Had"

No wonder this gentleman is pleased. He has just finished his first shave with Williams—and what a delightful revelation it has been to him!

Men everywhere who use Williams feel the same way. They all say they have never used a shaving cream that feels so good on the face; that soaks the beard so thoroughly; that makes shaving so clean, close and comfortable.

Of course there's a reason for all this. A century of experience, a vast background of knowledge, behind every tube of Williams Shaving Cream. Only the finest ingredients are used. Williams is rich, thick, moist, mellow. It is lather for the skin as well as the beard.

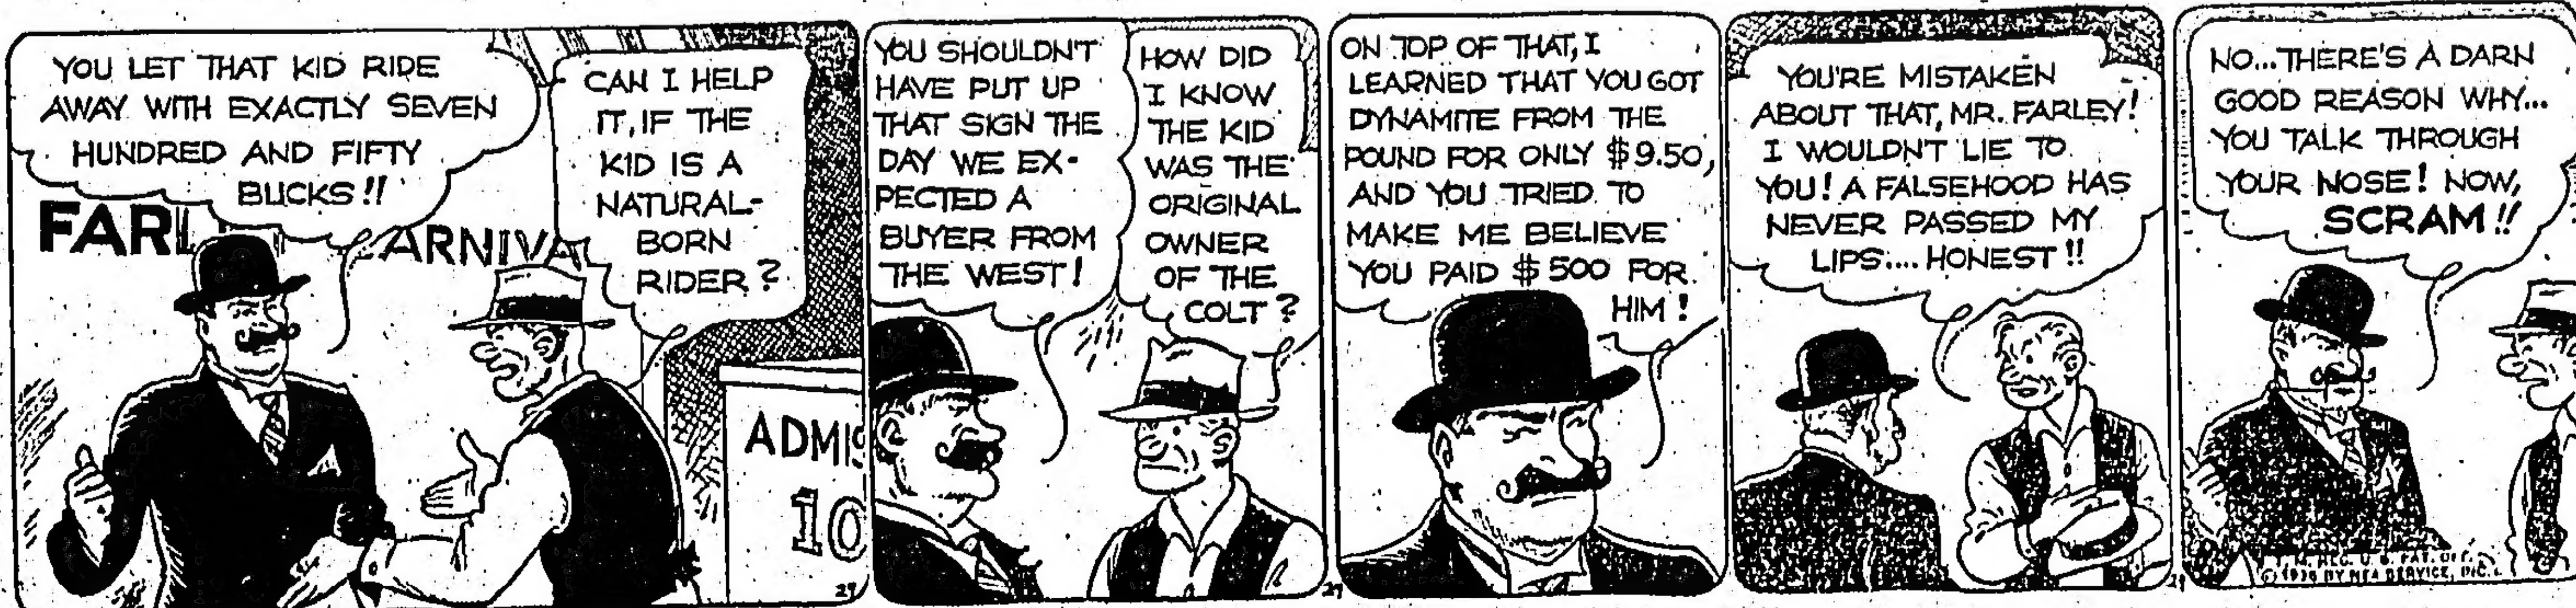

Williams is economical too—a little makes a lot of lather. Try it yourself.

CHAPTER III

THEY were bumping along a dirt detour road late that night when two men sprang before the car. As Michael came to a stop, a gun was jabbed against his back.
Things happened quickly after that.
The gunmen, notorious convicts who
had just broken out of jail, made them prisoners in their own car. They were going to use Michael and the two women as a perfect decoy for troopers on the lookout for two or three robbers.
They travelled all night but with morning, the gunmen drove to a mountain hideout. Escape seemed hopeless but Michael, now thoroughly
desperate, decided to take a chance.
On the rise that he was thirsty; he got up to pour himself some water
and then suddenly swung, hurling the pitcher full into their faces. He had smashed his way through the window and was gone by the time they reached their guns.

On his dash to freedom, he passed
the car. He stopped long enough to duplicate the little trick he had pulled on Paula several days before. A little tinkering with the petcock on the feed line—and the stage was set.
He was hiding in a clump of bushes
when the car came to a halt. As the gunmen ran out to inspect the motor,
Michael swung a huge stick he had picked up. There was a fierce battle but Michael emerged, in the midst of flying fists, to shout instructions:
"The gun, Aunt Charlotte! Get the gun and keep them covered!"
Then, to his own disgust, he fainted dead away.
Paula's arms were around him when he regained consciousness. Next to him lay the two gunmen, still out.
But what brought a happy grin to Michael's lips was Paula's frantic
plea:
"Michael, speak to me, darling!
You're not going to die, do you hear?
You can't!"
"I most certainly am going to die,"
Michael assured her as he got up.
"You fool!" she laughed at him.
"You're not wounded at all!"
He was suddenly serious as he pulled her toward him.
"Paula, listen, does this make sense? I have to be wounded and dying for you to call me darling!
Can't you manage to call me darling
again?"
"Darling—" she whispered softly.
"Thanks," he said quietly. "I don't blame you for wanting to marry that guy in Los Angeles. Why should you conserve me at all—just a tramp you picked up on the road!"
Her eyes were starry as she looked at him.
"I'd love you, even if you were the biggest tramp in the world—and you probably are."
"I'd love you," he replied solemnly,
"even if you were the sweetest, dearest girl in the world—and you probably are!"
"Well—" It was Aunt Charlotte, recalling them forcibly to the immediate present. "If we're going to get rid of these two—two—creatures—"
"Come on," Michael became a dynamo of action. "We can make Albuquerque by evening, pick up our reward and go right on from there."
"We'll travel all night. I've got to be in Los Angeles to-morrow. It's
—about a job."
"Oh, yes," Paula smiled. "I was going to ask you about your prospects."
"You won't regret marrying me," he promised happily. "I promise to darn my own socks, cook my own meals
and—"
"Please!" Paula interrupted timidly. "Let me have my own babies, Michael!"
Aunt Charlotte sighed resignedly.
"Jackson Wallace doesn't know it,"
she murmured. "But he has no mother
for his children."
And so Michael, that evening, attained his third objective—money.

The reward was $1,000 for the capture of the gunmen but legal technicalities meant several days' delay in the payoff. Michael settled for $100 spot
cash.
Just before starting out, again, he decided to phone his uncle who was already in Los Angeles. He did not realize that the door of the phone booth was slightly open and that Paula, who had just entered in search of him, could overhear.
"Hi, Uncle Carlton," he was saying jubilantly into the phone. "Remember that little wager we made in New York? I just called you to make sure you'd get to the bank to-morrow
before they closed. Sure, I have the suit right on my back and here—" he rustled the reward money in front of the mouthpiece, "a hundred bucks, hear it? Now, don't quibble, Uncle—you lose the bet. Certainly, I was in the wrong, wasn't I? Her name's Paula Gilbert."

Paula gasped and stood very still for a moment. Then, quickly, she slipped out, still unobserved. She did not wait to hear the rest of Michael's conversation.
"She's beautiful!" he was craving to his uncle. "She's like Helen of Troy, Venus, Katharine Hepburn—all rolled into one. But, listen, the bet's got nothing to do with this. I love her honestly, sincerely—I—well, I haven't the words for it. I'll see you tomorrow on the deadline—five o'clock.
Goodbye!"

Not until an hour later did Michael learn that Paula had sold her car and plane for Los Angeles.
THE GIANT airliner was well on its way when Michael discovered hidden in the lavatory. He had tried to buy a ticket but no seats were to be had. And though he knew he would be arrested as soon as the plane landed, he had taken the chance. He had to find out why Paula had run away.

Sitting on the floor next to her seat,
he had little success in making her talk.
"But you owe me an explanation
and I intend to get one," he insisted.
Paula's voice was like ice. "You wouldn't want to bet with that, too, would you?" she asked deliberately.
Realization dawned on him. "So that's it! You heard me on the phone!"
"Yes."
"You didn't happen to hear the entire conversation, did you?" he asked hopefully.

"I heard enough!"
"But I can explain all that in two sentences," she pleaded.
It was no use. Paula even refused to quarrel with him. As for her aunt—Michael was just not getting anywhere, except, of course, to jail.
He was certain that his uncle would manage his release as soon as he heard what had happened. But Carton MacCreigh, his nephew learned to his sorrow, was just as determined to win the bet. He didn't intend to release Michael until after five o'clock,
zero hour for the wager.

It was, surprisingly enough, Aunt Charlotte who arranged his bail. As they drove away, she explained her sudden change of heart.
"I have a feeling that deep down in
your heart, you really love my niece—Paula loves you. But she's bent on breaking her own heart, the little devil, and I want you to stop it.
She's at a store now, getting her trousseau. Get over there and make her see daylight!"
Paula was trying on a white evening gown when Michael burst into the fitting room.
"I told you I could explain about that bet," he shouted at her. "Why don't you listen to me?"
Paula glanced at her wrist watch.
"It's almost five o'clock now," she shrugged with disinterest. "I've got a wedding on my hands. I've got to mail to China. I've got a trousseau to finish buying and an appointment at the beauty parlour. Sorry, I haven't time to hear you."

Michael grabbed her hand and pointed to her watch.

"You'll listen to what I have to say right now," he stormed. "It's five o'clock and I lose my bet, no matter
what I do—married or unmarried.
That ought to prove to you that it didn't mean anything to me. At first,
maybe it did—but when I told you I loved you, I meant it—bet or no bet,
and, spoiled brat that you are, I still love you." He bent down over her and gave her an angry little shake.
"Now, will you marry me?"

"No!"
"I'm a pauper, haven't got a cent."
"No! It was a little weaker this time."

"I've got a job, but you'll probably have to take it in washing."
She looked up at him then and smiled.

"Why didn't you say so in the first place?" she murmured.

Michael whooped and pulled her to him hungrily. "Come on, get the Wallace colours off! I'll buy you a real trousseau."

In the basement of a five-and-ten,
they found the perfect wedding ensemble for the poor bride of Michael MacCreigh—a dust cap, a rubber apron, rubber gloves. Paula put them on then and there and, flustered before Michael's admiring eyes.

"Just what the smart washwoman will wear," she said gaily. "Everything complete except housemaid's knee. Well, she put her arm through Michael's affectionately. "Let's get out before they close the store on us."
"But, Madam, the salesgirl timidly volunteered, "the store doesn't close until six. It's ten minutes to five now!"

Michael's eyes almost popped. He whirled excitedly.
"Didn't you put your watch back in Albuquerque?" As she shook her head, he grabbed her and dashed for the door. "We're rich again—we're in the money. Come on!"

And so, promptly at five, though
how they made it no one ever knew,
Michael confronted Carlton Mac-
Creigh, all conditions of the wager fulfilled. He had the money, the suit, but better than that, the one girl in
the world.

At their celebration dinner that night, the elder MacCreigh toasted the couple a little sadly.
"Well, I'm in the show business
whether I like it or not," he sighed.
"You deserve the money, Michael, but I still think you ought to come into the meat packing business. That ten-thousand dollar a year job with me
still holds."

Paula turned on Michael with amusement.
"You've been made an offer like that
and you're going to risk good money playing around the stage?" As he nodded, she went on, determinedly:
"Oh, no—I want to know where you are nights. I want my children to know where you are nights. You're going into the meat packing business,
my good man."

Michael stared at her for a moment
and then grinned.
"I suppose you know you're a double-crosser? Do you know what Butch MacCreigh does to double-crossers?"

"Yes—I imagine he kisses them."
"Well," she pointed as Michael made no move. "Aren't you going to kiss me?"

He shook his head stubbornly. "Say
please!" he demanded.
"Please!" Paula whispered, throwing her arms around him. "Please—
please—please!"

The rest was lost as Michael's lips
found hers.

Pale-Faced Pygmy Tribe PEER'S FIND IN WILD NEW GUINEA

A RACE of pale-faced pygmies, hitherto unknown, was discovered in the New Guinea hinterland by an expedition under Lord Moyne, who recently returned to England from a cruise through the Malay Archipelago in his yacht Rasaura.

"We penetrated 180 miles up the Ramu River, in Australian mandated territory, to find the pygmies," Lord Moyne said. "At first they were very ferocious, though, unlike the black tribes which inhabit the country around them, they are not cannibals. The country is very wild—dense jungle surmounted by snow-capped mountains 12,000 feet high."

The men of the tribe average four feet six inches in height, the women some three inches less.

Lord Moyne was asked whether he had found traces of the mysterious white race which is said to inhabit the high plateaux of the interior. "No," he said. "We merely scratched the surface. There are many places which we wished to visit but were not allowed to."

On the carved panelling of the ballroom at Lord Moyne's home in Grosvenor Place hang some of the grimmest ornaments that have ever adorned a London house.

Tied together with string were two human shoulder blades and two lower jaws, the remnants of a cannibal feast.

"We found them tied up over the hearth of a house in a deserted village," Lord Moyne said, "intending that they must have been intended for food because of the many cannibals bones tied up with them."

An exhibition of the specimens collected during the voyage is to be opened to the public to-day. The exhibits will later be divided among museums.

FAMILY'S DAILY SACRIFICE KEEPS FATHER ALIVE

—Secret Blood Transfusions

Calcutta, June 12.

FOR six months the devoted sons and daughters of fifty-year-old Dr. S. Sen have been keeping him alive by making blood transfusions every day—and even the nearest friends of the family have been unaware of their sacrifice.

RING OF "LIDOS"

PROPOSED FOR LONDON

London, May 25.

London may soon have a ring of open-air bathing pools like the East End Lido which was opened this month.

Already consideration has been given to proposals for three other pools, perhaps, quite as large as the East End Lido, but with sun-benches, refreshment-houses, and terraces for spectators, as at Victoria Park. Eventually the London County Council may build another half-dozen bathing-pools of similar design. Sites which are being considered for immediate successors to the East End enterprise are: Brockwell Park, a portion of Parliament Hill Fields, and Charlton Park.

Some inquiries, it is understood, have already been made, though definite decisions have yet to be reached.

The programme is an attempt by the London County Council to meet

Dr. Sen is suffering from the rare disease, leukaemia (which causes an increase in the white corpuscles of the blood).

Local doctors were baffled, so specialists in England and Germany have been consulted daily by telegram.

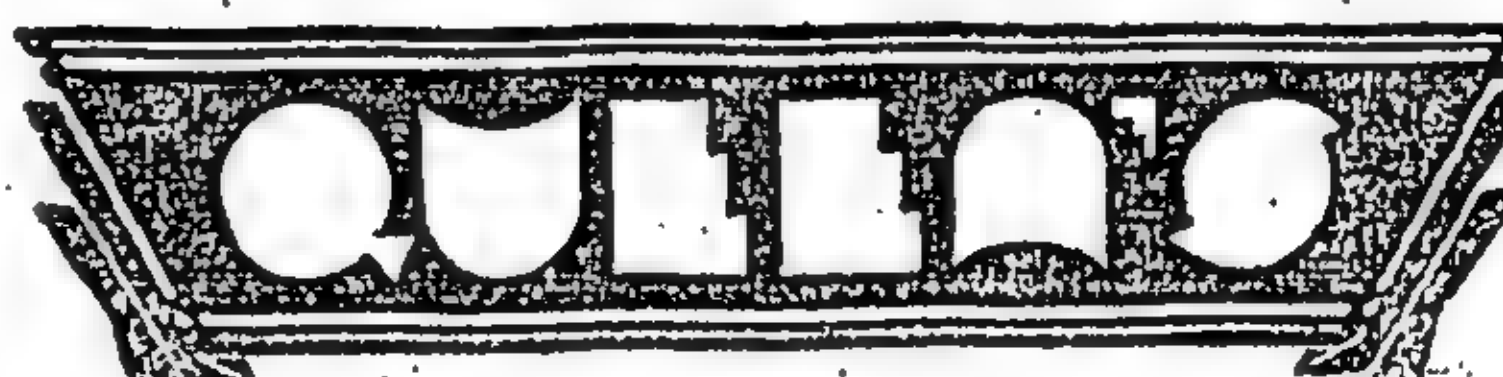

The family's sacrifice was revealed as a result of a public appeal for volunteers for blood transfusion. Dr. Sen's family have been ordered a long rest owing to their weak condition.

Daily transfusions are the only way to keep Dr. Sen alive. There have been hundreds of volunteers, and those selected will receive 10s. for each ounce of blood they give.

FIGHTING FOR HENGCHOW

Kwangsi Troops Open Attack

OFFICIAL ADVICES FROM SEAT OF GOVERNMENT

Nanking, June 25.
(11.05 a.m.)

It is officially reported that Kwangsi troops have attacked the Central Government lines at Hengchow.

The attack was directed upon a suburb of the city and occurred Wednesday. It is stated there were many casualties.—United Press.

It was reported yesterday that Kwangsi troops had advanced on Kiyang, driving in Nanking outposts under fire, but that there had been no casualties. Kiyang, as far as was then known, had not been attacked. No word of its capture has yet been received, yet Hengchow, also in Hunan, is about 60 miles north and east from Kiyang.

Hengchow Still Held

Nanking, June 25.
(11.15 a.m.)

It is officially stated that the Central Government troops are still holding Hengchow, indicating that the reported attack of Kwangsi forces has been driven off.—United Press.

HANKOW REPORTS BRIEF ACTION

Shanghai, June 25.
(1.15 p.m.)

A reliable report from Hankow states the vanguard of the Kwangsi forces has reached Hengchow and has fired on the Government troops stationed at the city gates, inflicting minor casualties. Later the Kwangsi troops withdrew, but the situation is very tense.—Reuter.

CLOSING ROAD TO WARSHIPS

NATIONS DISCUSS DARDANELLES

BRITAIN NOT DECIDED

Montreux, June 24.

Russia, Japan, France and Britain have all put forward suggestions for regulation to govern the passage of armed craft through the Dardanelles, which Turkey desires to re-fortify.

To-day the British delegate to the conference of treaty signatories made reservations with regard to the proposed figure of 14,000 tons of fighting craft, which it was proposed to allow through the Straits.

Tawfik Rushdi, the Turkish representative, said his Government would not insist upon this figure and would consider reasonable modifications. In response to M. Paul Boncour's suggestion, on behalf of France, M. Maxim Litvinoff, of Russia, agreed to alter his proposed amendment so as to allow belligerent vessels to pass through the Straits when carrying out obligations under the League of Nations Covenant or within the framework of the Covenant.

The Japanese representative said he would accept the restriction upon warships entering the Black Sea provided they were also imposed on warships leaving that sea.—Reuter.

AGREE TO REVISION

Tokyo, June 25.
It is understood a conference of the highest naval officials has decided to support the Turkish demand for revision of the Lausanne Treaty. Nevertheless, attention is drawn to the too indulgent attitude of the Turkish Government towards the Soviet's request for access for its warships from the Black Sea.—Reuter.

JAPANESE WARSHIPS MAY ACT

If China Exceeds Authority

TAIJI MARU INCIDENT

Tientsin, June 25.

Although Japanese civil officers say the Taiji Maru incident is closed, Captain Haruhiko Kubota, resident Naval Officer, denied this statement.

He said that he is awaiting a reply from the Chinese Maritime Customs.

He said the Navy was prepared to act if the Chinese Customs cruisers again exceeded their authority.—United Press.

The Taiji Maru, according to previous reports from Tientsin, was fired on by a Customs cruiser when she refused to stop at the order of the Chinese craft. The master and one of the crew of the Japanese craft were wounded seriously.

The cruiser later towed the Taiji Maru to port and the Japanese authorities commenced inquiries, which, according to first advice, resulted in the conclusion that the matter should be closed.

Mr. Eamon de Valera, the Free State chief executive, when moving the estimates for the Governor-General's establishments to-day, announced that the Dail in view of its new constitution would abolish the office of Governor-General.

UGLY INCIDENTS IN FRANCE

Marseilles, June 24.

The shipping strike, which earlier to-day took on an ugly aspect when strikers quit work on six submarines and others occupied two cruisers, at St. Nazaire, in the course of construction, has been settled.

The strike ended with sirens blowing a tuneless honnour, indicating the satisfaction of the strikers, who had literally seized nearly seventy ships in the harbour and hoisted the red flag of Communism.

MINERS SETTLE

Brussels, June 24.

The National Congress of Miners to-day decided that work would be resumed in the mines on Friday.—Reuter.

WANTS WIFE FOR FLIGHT CHAMBERLAIN TO HOP ATLANTIC

Portland, Me., June 24.

Clarence Chamberlain, famous flier, arrived here to-day in order "to propose again" to Miss Louise Ashley, daughter of the State Representative.

He said he was planning an early July flight across the Atlantic, starting from Newark, N.J., refuelling at Presque Isle, and hopping from there to Paris. He drew attention to the fact that such a route was 600 miles shorter than that ordinarily followed.

If she accepts, he said, he would take his bride along with him.—United Press.

SEMI-OFFICIAL VIEW OF ITALY

Rome, June 24.

The former Foreign Minister, Signor Carlo Schanzer, writing in Giornale d'Italia to-day, attacks sanctions, saying they were "illegally applied" and asserting that their continuance would be a violation of the League Covenant and lead to a general conflagration.

The article was given prominence, indicating its contents may be repeated in the coming Italian memorandum to Geneva.—United Press.

NO NEED FOR WAR PANIC

Hoare Reassures Empire Society

BRITAIN TO BUILD NAVY OF PREDOMINANT POWER

London, June 24.

"There is no need for panic, and no need to assume that war is inevitable," declared Sir Samuel Hoare, recently returned to the British Cabinet, when speaking to the Royal Empire Society in London to-night.

No country in Europe desired war, he said, but there was so much inflammable material in Europe that a spark might start a conflagration, "unless great Powers, like ourselves, are strong enough to make our influence felt in the cause of peace."

If the British Army, Navy and Air Force were adequately strengthened in time, there would be no war, he asserted.

If, he continued, a well-balanced British Fleet, capable of defeating an enemy and keeping the seas open, and equipped to go anywhere, could be built in time, there would be no world war.

The advent of air power had not changed the functions of the Navy nor made it impossible to build a fleet that could carry out its traditional duties, said the First Lord of the Admiralty. His advisers were determined, with the help of modern science, to build a fleet able to go anywhere, and by the fullest use of air power, to make the new fleet once again predominant and the most mobile force for world peace.

No Loss Of Prestige

The sending of the British fleet to the Mediterranean during the recent crisis over sanctions has been a part of the collective security plan, and it had completely fulfilled its duty, preventing an extension of conflict.

It was foolish and mischievous talk, that of loss of prestige, and was mostly enemy propaganda, and it would be proved altogether futile in the future, Sir Samuel declared.

He noted with interest and sympathy, he said, the plea of the American Navy League, for Anglo-American naval co-operation to make future wars impossible.—Reuter Special.

No Differences

London, June 24.

In reply to a request in the House of Commons for a statement concerning points of difference of interpretation regarding the Anglo-German Naval Agreement, the First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Samuel Hoare, said he welcomed the opportunity of saying that all details had been settled in a satisfactory and friendly manner and there had been no question of any material difference of interpretation on any point.—British Wireless.

War Not Inevitable

London, June 24.

Speaking to-night at a dinner of the Royal Empire Society, Sir Samuel Hoare said it was criminal folly to assume that war was inevitable. There was, however, so much inflammable material in Europe that although no country desired war, a spark might start a conflagration unless great powers like Britain were strong enough to make their influence felt in the cause of peace. That was why they were doing their utmost still further to accelerate the naval programme. If the British Army, Navy and Air Force were adequately strengthened in time, there was going to be no world war.

Discussing the question whether a well-balanced Fleet, capable of defeating an enemy and keeping the seas open, equipped to go anywhere, could be built in time, he said that the three essential duties of cover, cruising and convoy, could be built in the face of changes created by air power, Sir Samuel said that neither the Naval Staff nor he would ever be so foolish as to say that defence had caught up with attack. But if asked whether the advent of air power had changed the functions of the Navy and had made it impossible to build a Fleet that could carry out its traditional duties, his answer was "No". In building such a Fleet, his advisers were determined to make the fullest use of air power and so to make the new Fleet.

JAPANESE CHILDREN ASSAULTED

CHARGE AGAINST CHINESE

STRUCK AND SPAT UPON

Molestation of Japanese children in Wanchai while on their way to the Japanese Primary School, Kennedy Road, in the mornings, was alleged by Mr. Kawazoe Shigeharu, the Headmaster, when he was a witness before Mr. J. H. B. Lee, at the Central Magistracy, this morning, on a charge brought against a carpenter, Tsang Ton, 28, of assaulting three boys, Mizota Kazuo, 12, Kaku Denko, 11, Nakamura Toru, 10, and a girl, Masuda Tokima, aged six years, in Queen's Road East near the Naval Dockyard entrance at 8 a.m. yesterday morning.

Evidence showed that following recent reports by pupils, the Headmaster proceeded to the vicinity yesterday and saw the defendant striking the four children with his fists on the head, and following behind and spitting at them. On the Headmaster arresting the accused, two other coolies bolted.

The children all gave evidence and Mizota Kazuo, one of the boys, who alleged he was struck in the chest by the defendant, stated that when he got to school he could hardly breathe. The defendant spat mostly at the little girl.

The defendant denied the accusations.

The Magistrate decided to convict and imposed a fine of $10, with the alternative of fourteen days' hard labour.

Sub-inspector A. J. Johnson conducted the case for the prosecution.

FORESTALLED BRITAIN

Honolulu, June 24.

The small island which recently figured prominently as outposts of the proposed air-line from Honolulu to New Zealand, have now been officially "colonised" with American citizens.

It is believed this move on the part of the United States is made with the object of forestalling claims by the British Government. These islands were formerly looked upon as being British, but since they were not colonised, in fact had no living soul upon them, the United States laid claim to them.

Twelve American schoolboys have hastily been taken from Honolulu in a coastguard cutter and four are being left at each of the three islands, where they will plant the American flag.—Reuter.

Van Zeeland's Reform Plans Are Divulged

Brussels, June 24.

M. Paul Van Zeeland, Prime Minister of Belgium, to-day presented a Ministerial Declaration to Parliament containing a number of labour and social reforms.

These include plans for minimum wage law, holidays with pay and a forty-hour week in an unhealthy occupation.

Financial misdemeanours will be heavily punished, the Declaration warns, and the foreign policy will be the lines of former Governments.—Reuter.

HIGHLY VALUED PEARLS STOLEN

Locust Valley, N.Y., June 24.

A burglar entered the home of Mr. W. H. Coe, the socialist, financier and sportsman, in Upper Brookville, it is disclosed, and stole jewels totalling over $400,000 in value, including a pearl necklace worth $300,000.—United Press.

FOR once in a way let's pay attention to men. The men of your family probably think very little, if at all, about their personal appearance, but, if given the chance, they would prefer to keep their hair on their head and their middle-aged spread at bay.

And yet no one takes the trouble to teach them even the elementary rules of self-protection.

If you object to your husband going bald, the first rule is not under any circumstances to allow him to wash his head in the bath, which is a horrible habit peculiar to men. Make him shampoo his hair in a civilized manner in the wash-basin.

Shave up an ounce of castile soap, and melt it over a slow fire in a pint of warm water. Make him wash his head with several lathers and at least four rinsing waters, with half a cup of vinegar in the last rinsing water.

Teach him that a hair-brush is not only to smooth his hair into place, but is intended for actual brushing purposes. Before the last smoothing takes place, he should take both his brushes and brush his hair on end so that the scalp is treated to a reasonable amount of friction.

After a thorough brushing, he can apply all the hair lotion that he wishes to keep his unruly locks in place.

Asks
Jane Gordon

Good brand made with oil for dry scalps and without oil for greasy scalps.

MEN would be saved all complexion trouble if they would only give the top half of their faces one quarter of the attention that the lower half gets. The average man lathers his face, shaves it neatly and finishes with a careless wipe of the sponge and a flick of the towel. If when he had finished shaving he would take a rubber sponge and treat the top part of his face to a light lather of ordinary complexion soap, giving his nose plenty of friction, and then rinse thoroughly with cool water, he would prevent any inclination towards blackheads, which in a man only appear on the nose and upper part of the cheek.

Any signs of roughness of lumpy rashes should be kept clean by swabbing with warm boracic lotion and dabbed afterwards with calomine lotion.

THOSE men who tinker about with machinery and whose hands are inclined to get extra rough and dirty should be provided with warm olive oil.

The best way is to pour plenty of olive oil into the palm of the hand before washing, rub it well into the hands, and then wash off with lukewarm water and a good lather of soap. This gets most of the stickiness off, and the second ordinary washing will leave the hands clean and prevent chapping.

A DAILY dozen is even more necessary for men than it is for women because men have no support in the way of belts and corsets. A correct breathing exercise is the most important part of the daily routine. This is done as follows: Stand erect near an open window, place the palms of the hands on the lower part of the ribs, breathe through your nose until the lower ribs expand as far as possible, then let the breath out by contracting the abdominal wall inwards.

Four pounds red or black currants, 4lb. sugar, 1 gallon water. Wash and stem currants. Put into large earthenware vessel, add water. Cover and stand for 3 days, stirring each day. One bottle claret, small bottle

LEMON TEA
One teaspoon tea, ½ lemon to each person. Squeeze the lemon into a jug. Pour on ½ pint boiling water. Pour this on to the tea in the teapot and stand 2 minutes. Fill up the teapot with boiling water and stand 2 minutes. Strain off into glasses. Serve with slices of lemon separately.

LEMON SODA
Lemon can be served iced. Allow tea to become quite cold. Put lump of ice into each glass. Pour tea over. Serve with slices of lemon.

TEA PUNCH
One cup of hot tea, 9 table-spoons orange juice, 4 table-spoons lemon juice, 4 table-spoons sugar, 1 pint ginger ale, 1 pint soda water, 3 table-spoons sherry. Make the tea and pour on to the sugar. TAKING OUT STAINS

GREASE. Spot with refined petrol or cleaning spirit. If it resists rub in oleic acid and then ammonia, washing it off afterwards.

INK. For writing ink try to remove it with ammonia and water. If it still resists pad the stain with oleic acid ammonia. Wash this off and treat with nits of lemon to remove the iron. Then treat with hypochlorite solution and wash it immediately with cold water. If a slight brown stain remains treat it with hydrosulphite. Ink stains on furniture can be removed with a little vinegar in slightly warm water. For marking ink dab the stain with iodine, then with ordinary photographic "fixer."

TOBACCO. Treat with "hypos" or with alcohol and ammonia.

SHOE POLISH. Wash with warm water and soap. Spot with a mixture of amyl acetate and acetone.

TAIL. Spot with refined petrol or cleaning spirit and then wash with warm water.

NURSE WADDINGHAM CONFESSED

But She Said:

"Tell The Children
I Am Innocent"

Nottingham, June 1.
DOROTHEA WADDINGHAM, hanged on April 16 for murdering Ada Baguley, confessed a few hours before she died.

"She was making her will at the time."

"Tell my children I am innocent," she said in the statement disposing of her property.

The confession was made suddenly—unexpectedly.

It has been kept a close secret since. Not even her solicitor, Mr. R. A. Young, knew of it.

"It is news to me," he said.

"HYSTERICAL"

Mr. R. J. Sullivan, who was acquitted of the murder for which Nurse Waddingham was executed, said: "I suppose it is possible, but I'm very surprised to hear it."

"She was in a very hysterical state when I saw her two days before the execution."

"I don't think she knew quite what she was doing."

He said this in the house in Devon-drive, where Ada Baguley died.

The room was piled high with linoleum, carpets and furniture.

"You can see I am moving from here," Mr. Sullivan said, waving his hand with a weary gesture which took in the little sitting-room.

"I can't stand the gossiping tongues any longer. It has become absolute torture."

"People nudge each other in the street as I pass."

"I am going to live outside Nottingham."

"Things have become so bad here that I am thinking of changing my name."

Anger came into Sullivan's voice.

"I have stood my trial, and been found innocent," he said.

"Why on earth can't people be decent and leave me alone?"

WHEN BRIDGE IS A LOTTERY

New York, June 21.

CONTRACT Bridge is a game of skill.

Two New York teachers were arrested for running as a gambling house a studio in which bridge was played for small prizes.

Mr. Ely Culbertson gave evidence before three judges in special sessions, and he summed up his philosophy of the game by saying: "Bridge is predominantly a game of skill, but there is the same element of chance in it as in life."

Another expert, Mr. Albert Morehead, said the only element of chance in bridge was when your partner was unable to play his best game.

The prosecution admitted that it had searched the city, but could find no one who would testify that bridge was a game of chance, and the case was dismissed.

Five Meals A Day Keep The Quins' Doctor Away

Montreal, June 1.
WHAT is the ideal diet for babies?

If you want to know take a peep into the nursery of the Dionne Quins, who, in spite of the tremendous handicap with which they started life, are, at the age of one year eleven months, probably the world's healthiest infants.

They are neither fat nor lean, but happy, hungry, roistering children working off all day long their healthy energy.

Dr. Allan R. Dufoe, their guardian, has worked out a system of dietary which, he believes, is scientifically perfect for children of their age.

"TO-DAY'S IDEAL"

"A generation ago the ideal baby was the fat baby," he said.

Anglo- Hollywood Alliance

"BORROWED"

An Anglo-American film alliance of some significance is indicated by the signing of an agreement whereby British National Films, Ltd., are to have the co-operation and support of the important Hollywood company, Twentieth Century Fox.

British National Films has the millionaire Lady Yule among its directors.

When the company was formed it had ambitious plans, and Mr. John Corfield, another director, said recently that its modest production so far was due to studio shortage as well as to the difficulties of engaging stars and of ensuring distribution in America.

"The facilities offered for training our personnel in Hollywood," said Mr. Corfield, "and the access British National has to the efforts of the best American writers can only prove of the greatest value."

"We can now borrow well-known players, purchase stories hitherto not available, and take advantage of the unique production facilities and organisation of Twentieth Century Fox."

TOOK DEATH DOSE
AND LIVED

London, June 15.

A UNIVERSITY audience of 1,000 doctors, students and scientists here watched a professor swallow a heavy dose of arsenic— which he neutralised an hour later by taking a pill of his own invention.

The professor, a noted Polish scientist named Tadeus Skrzywinski, claims that his antidote has already saved the lives of hundreds of would-be suicides.

"SAFE" DRUG TREATMENT: WOMAN DIED

THE death of Mrs. Ethel Greswolde, aged fifty, of Webb-lane, Hall Green, Birmingham, from the effects of a drug prescribed by a London doctor for rheumatoid arthritis led to this comment by Coroner Dr. W. H. Davison at Birmingham.

"If this can happen to a patient who, having been seen and approved as suitable for treatment by the doctor responsible for the formula of the drug, and who was in the practice of a medical practitioner, who was so cautious as to confirm by inquiry from his chemist if it was safe to use the drug, then I have not the least hesitation in saying that in future more and more explicit instructions as to the use of the drug should be supplied with it by the distributors."

"He added that this applied particularly in chronic cases where treatment was prolonged."

CONTAINED ATOPHAN

It was reported that Mrs. Greswolde's local doctor had administered the drug—gorem—without knowing that it contained atophan, a dangerous drug if administered continuously.

No mention of this fact was made in the literature describing the preparation with which the doctor had been supplied. A marginal note was added to the leaflet later, following a fatality caused by the drug.

Professor P. C. Clooke, of Birmingham University, said the drug was a most valuable remedy in certain cases. The woman's death was due to the administration of the drug in a way which was wrong and dangerous.

The professor said he thought the inquest served no useful purpose. He had not reported the death to the coroner's office. A post-mortem examination had been conducted at his hospital.

"NO JUSTIFICATION"

"You had no justification to do that and interfere with the evidence," said the coroner.

Dr. H. G. Jacobsen, a German, of Woodstock-road, Colders Green, N., whose evidence was interpreted, said he was responsible for the drug formula. He introduced it in Germany in 1925 and in England three years later.

Dr. Davison, returning a "Death from misadventure" verdict, said he thought the local doctor had administered the drug in good faith, as Dr. Jacobsen and the distributors, a London firm, said it was good for the complaint and not dangerous.

RECIPE FOR LONG LIFE

London, June 20.

Mrs. Mary Stubbin of Halford-road, Richmond, a grant-niece of Constable, the landscape painter, was 104 years old on Saturday.

She has never worn spectacles, reads the newspapers daily, and is fond of knitting and sewing.

Her long-life recipe: "Regular habits—and if you feel unwell, go to bed for a day."

"LOVE PHILTRE" GIRL'S AIR DASH

'My £14,000
Wasted'

Paris, June 15.

MISS BABY SIEGFRIED Knudsen, the Swedish blonde, who accuses a well-known Paris fortune teller of extracting £14,000 from her for "love philtres and magic potions" to retain the love of a wealthy banker whom she had vainly hoped to marry, dashed by air from London to Paris to-day to present her case to the examining magistrate here.

Wearing a smartly tailored dark costume, and shallow-crowned hat with a broad up-turned brim, Miss Knudsen hurried into the magistrate's room and declared: "Mme. de Tanis (the fortune-teller) assured me that she had remarkable powers by which she could help me to retain my lover's affections."

"Yet the £14,000 I spent on various potions she recommended was entirely wasted."

"It seems a fantastic thing, but when needs arise one takes advantage of any means at one's disposal." The fortune-teller, whose real name is Mme. Soudre, also appeared before the magistrate.

A stout, alert-faced woman, she wore a smart fur-collared coat with a long, flowing velvet robe which swept the ground.

Afterwards she said to a reporter: "This astounding accusation is completely without foundation."

CONFRONTATION DRAMA

"I handed the examining magistrate letters from famous men and women which prove that I am quite incapable of extracting such a sum of money from this young woman."

"Naturally a fee was paid by Miss Knudsen. When you go to a doctor you have to pay a fee. It is the same when you consult someone as to the future, the fee must be paid. To grumble about it afterwards, when perhaps things do not turn out as they should, is ridiculous."

"I have been foretelling future events for years, and I have never before had to face such accusations."

The examining magistrate announced afterwards that the two women would be brought face to face in court next Wednesday.

Two Lessons

There were two lessons that emerged from the experience of the last six months. The first was that collective security in actual practice meant the British Fleet in the Mediterranean. It was the embodiment of collective security. Deprived of the advantages of mobilisation and of carefully-laid preparations, faced with disturbing anxieties, international uncertainties and a long protracted crisis the Fleet had performed, with constancy and efficiency, the duty that was imposed upon it. It had completely fulfilled its duty of preventing an extension of the conflict.

The second lesson was that although in theory the combined strength of fifty nations might mean a formidable military force, in practice the value of the force depended entirely upon the willingness of various countries not only to go to war with an aggressor but to be prepared for war if and when the aggressor made his attack. The only member State of the League that was prepared ever to make effective preparations was Great Britain. Hope, then, in the present state of world opinion, would be justified in assuming that we could depend upon collective help in distant regions of the world where leading powers were not members of the League.

Need of Strong Navy

These lessons showed that the League, no less than the world of the 19th century, depended upon a strong British Navy as one of the great factors of peace. Secondly, the absence of collective military action in the autumn showed that the British Empire, whilst it would do its utmost to achieve the ideal of collective security, must still depend upon its Imperial defences and particularly upon a strong British Navy. These lessons deserved to be pondered calmly and dispassionately at home and by the Dominions.

In spite of changes, the fundamental fact remained that the Empire depends for its life on its sea communications. Let us then learn wisdom from the experience of the last six months. We are determined to stop the drift to war. Stronger in future than we have been in recent years, our influence in the cause of peace will be greater, and not less.

Appearing on remand before Mr. Macfadyen at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court this morning, Lau Yung-kwong, aged 32, unemployed, was bound over in £50 for one year on a charge of stealing three pieces of sheet zinc from Waterloo Road on Monday last. The sheets were valued at about 50 cents.

It is most important that the skin should be cleansed morning and night with CLEANSING CREAM, as this cream dissolves and removes all dust and powder from the skin. It leaves the skin clear and smooth.

To tone the skin pat on ARDENA SKIN TONIC, this is a mild astringent which clears the skin, and closes enlarged pores.

Some skins may need a stronger astringent; for that type of skin SPECIAL ASTRINGENT is excellent. It firms loose skin and flabby tissues, braces and lifts drooping muscles.

Now nourish the skin with ORANGE SKIN FOOD. If you have a thin face or lines and wrinkles. This cream is excellent for filling out hollows and removing wrinkles.

If you have a full face then VELVA CREAM is used, as this nourishes the tissues without fattening the skin in any way.

AVAILABLE in all Studebakers for 1936 is the new automatic hill holder. This marvellous development in safety and comfort prevents the car from rolling back after you have come to a stop on any upgrade, steep or slight. Even the most expert driver often has difficulty in handling the clutch, brakes, gear change lever and accelerator at such times, and this simple, dependable Studebaker innovation solves that problem. Moreover, clutch wear will be greatly reduced since the clutch cannot be used as a brake to hold the car on the upgrade.

ETHIOPIA'S FATE

After a perusal of the statements of British and French foreign policy, with particular reference to the failure of the League to curb Italian aggression, it is difficult to resist the conclusion that Ethiopia is to be definitely sacrificed. Whilst Mr. Baldwin declares that Britain has no intention of condoning Italy's action, and M. Delbos asserts that French policy is to discourage aggression, the stark fact remains that Italy is, in virtual possession of Ethiopia, and seemingly nothing is to be done about it. All that emerges from the British and French statements is that there is to be an effort to reform the League, in the hope that it may become effective in future cases, and that France is devising a plan which will, it is thought, preserve the peace of Europe. The importance, and the necessity, of working out a formula which will prevent another world war cannot be over-stated, but what guarantee is there that small nations, such as Ethiopia, will not in future fall a victim to ambitious military Powers? Mr. Attlee rightly says there will be no security for any League State if Italy is permitted to triumph this time, whilst Sir Archibald Sinclair pointedly asserts that the attitude taken up by the British Government puts a premium on successful aggression and makes the world safe for Dictators. Mr. Baldwin admits that the League has failed in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute—just as it failed to stop Japanese aggression in the Far East. Yet he persists that British policy must be based on the League. It is true that he foresees the possibility of a policy of isolation by Britain, in the event of the League definitely coming to an end, but it is difficult for the average man to perceive the utility of attempting to keep the League alive in face of the admitted disinclination of important members to operate the machinery which it provides—machinery which could, without a shadow of doubt, have been made effective if strongly enforced in the early days of the

THE social snobbery which regards a large family as either ridiculous or vicious seems now to be creeping into legislation.

The small family—consisting of the Only Child, who is to have a first-class chance in life and a pony to ride, or at most the family of two, which in American ads, gives Junior a little sister for company—is now firmly established as the rule in most Acacia-avenues and in many cock-eyed societies of geniticians.

NOTES OF THE DAY

A sinister threat to China's independence of a different kind from that of Japanese armies was revealed during the recent meetings of the League of Nations Advisory Committee on the Traffic in Opium. This is the astounding amount of dangerous drugs, chiefly from Japan, which was imported into the country last year. In regard to heroin alone it is stated that from 25 to 50 times the quantity needed to meet the entire legitimate requirements of the world were imported. Of one drug it is stated that the imports were sufficient to give between two and four thousand million doses. In other words it was sufficient to create drug addicts of a very considerable proportion of China's teeming millions.

This may well prove a very serious threat to Chinese independence, for it cannot but be a danger to a country that the morale of a considerable section of its inhabitants should be undermined by drug addiction. There is something sinister in the thought that Japan may be deliberately taking advantage of this situation as being likely to further her own political aims for the control of China. Whether this is so or not it is a fact that most of the drugs come from Japan and the League's Committee recently declared that it was "again struck by the inadequacy of the sentences passed by Japanese courts on convicted Japanese traffickers".

It may be that one of the most effective means at the present moment by which the League can defend China's independence and integrity, as provided for in the Nine Power Treaty is by helping China to fight this canker in her body politic. Of equal importance is the constructive work which is being done by various technical organisations of the League to assist in the national reconstruction of China.

Italo-Ethiopian trouble. In this connection, the fact that Britain is engaged in exchanges of view with France is of interest, but it is difficult to realise why greater pressure, with a view to united action, could not have been applied before the Italian invaders triumphed. Mr. Baldwin's statement that nothing but military action can now make any difference in the status of Italy and Ethiopia, coupled with the obvious fact that no such action is intended, leaves a definite impression that Italy is to be permitted to enjoy her conquest without obstruction of any kind. Admittedly, she may not find the victory all she hopes, for the big problem of colonisation still remains ahead, but there will be few champions of the rights of small nations who will regard the present attitude of Britain and of France with any real satisfaction.

It seems to be Bad breeding
to breed

government have decided to pay no relief to an out-of-work labourer in respect of more than three children.

Of course, the Government do not say so in so many words. Governments don't do such things. What they say is that they will pay fourteen shillings to the labourer, seven shillings to his wife and three shillings to each child.

Then further down the Bill you see that they will pay a maximum of only thirty shillings to any one family. If you work out that little sum you will see that three children, is the limit in respect of relief.

(Quite right, too, says Acacia-avenue; disgraceful that a man should have more than three children if he cannot support them. Such breeding is just bad breeding.)

All hunk, say I. A nian should have as many children as he likes. Besides, if any man in the world could found a large family with the perfect assurance that he would never be out of work it should be the agricultural labourer in Britain, which imports £350,000,000 of the food that he could largely grow.

LORD MARLEY in the House of Lords took up the case of the labourer with a family as big as six.

He is a Socialist whom his colleagues in the past have suspected of being a Communist. So he did not go as far as the Fascist Mussolini, who wants unlimited families, but he went twice as far as the Government actuaries.

Where these actuaries apparently regard it as a crime to have more than three children, Lord Marley regards it as a crime to have more than six. But I suspect he is merely working to the rule of thumb plan of the Socialist Party often noticed by Ministers, which is simply this: When the Government offers any kind of relief, double it.

Anyhow, the honest labourer and his son's wife are to get no credit from Whitehall for a quiverful of children—even although children be like arrows in the hands of a giant.

THERE WAS ALSO last year the interesting question of the Overcrowding Act. This lays down penalties if a family exceed a Whitehall formula of so many children to the number of rooms of so many square feet each.

In tens of thousands of three-room houses here again the State limits the family to three, and one of them has to sleep in the kitchen unless a bountiful Providence should also become considerate to parents and arrange that their three children shall all be of the same sex and shall never grow older than the age of ten.

In that case they could sleep in one room and the mother at night might bend over her mischievous clutch as she does in the tender Scottish poem, saying: "Oh, bairnies, cuddle doon."

If there are two girls and a boy, then the boy gets the kitchen and the girls the bedroom. Or the wise and confident in the nurture learn young to be at home in the kitchen.

And if the parents who know of a better arrangement try to sleep one of the children in the same room as themselves they will find themselves in a large and roomy court of law with a risk of being ejected from their hereditament and paying a £2 fine.

None but a lawyer could raise a large family to-day in humble circumstances, and who ever heard of such a lawyer?

RECENTLY THE House of Commons were debating a Bill to reduce the number of cotton spindles in Lancashire. They were pruning the over-rich growth which sprang from the brain of Richard Arkwright.

For many generations his invention of the spinning frame scattered prosperity through Lancashire and founded British supremacy. Richard was the third child of parents in humble circumstances.

When they had reached the round dozen you may imagine the local sanitary inspector calling his family. "Hill Your family is always vigorous? It is certain too big for this house." Imagine that intellectual power and real genius have frequently been found right down at the bottom of a large family of nonentities.

It is true that many first-born have been distinguished. There is a theory that the first-born of able and intelligent parents will most readily reproduce their fine qualities, but that the first-born of humble parents will himself be humble, although in the process of raising a dozen they may produce one who will soar aloft.

Eldest children are commonly thought to be highly emotional and not over-clever. If that is so, heaven help us twenty years hence when we are dominated by hordes of only children. But there is no exact science in these matters.

Every rule can be instantly contradicted out of one's own experience. What? No genius among men who never knew brother or sister? What about Julius Caesar, Leonardo da Vinci, Baldwin and Ramsay MacDonald?

IN ORDINARY families the birth of a second child knocks the first off his pedestal, and that early fall does him good. Also he ceases to be "baby," and probably becomes a plain, sensible person, unsung and unsung. No. 7 or No. 8 in a large family remains "baby" into adolescence, and bitterly he resents these memories and eagerly he applies his energies to grow above his elders.

This at least is certain on this subject: that no school, university, club or society will ever replace in an only child the family fireside as a sprouting-ground of young emotions.

And, greatly daring, I would say this is certain: you never met the middle-aged mother of one child who did not wish she had half a dozen.

William Barkley

them replying: "But we want just one more." "Nonsense," says the Inspector. "You can't have little Richard."

I calculate that the humble Arkwright family would now reside for their family under the Ministry of Health rules a nine-room house with each room a floor seventy square feet. Impossible for Mother Arkwright under these rules to give birth to a genius.

As for Curuso, the singer: the mind boggles at the size of mansion that his mother would have had to order unless she had got the older boys off her hands fast. For he was the eighteenth child of twenty-one.

No doubt all such legislation has a splendid purpose and is inspired by the highest motives of abating the slum. My only point is that the authorities to-day never envisage the needs of a large family by building a large house, while they lay down housing rules which in time will prevent the creation of a large family.

DO WE GAIN OR lose by abolishing the long string of children which so many worthy parents have regarded with pride as their whole life's work?

Certainly much virtue and variety will go out of our lives, both local and national, if there are fewer and finally no children born of parents who have passed from the tumultuous years into calm maturity; who have grown wise and confident in the nurture of their offspring until they introduce, finally, shall we say, the eighth child into a household of children who will soon kick some sense into him.

There is quite a literature demonstrating that the eighth child is the best of the family in brains and in physique.

It derives, I believe, from King David, and the theory was buttressed by the noise made by another eighth child, Napoleon Bonaparte (whom our countrymen, however, in his life regarded as a pestilence).

THERE IS AN OLD Scottish saying that the seventh child of a seventh child has the second sight. An old Scots woman who told me this said it was true of two people she knew.

I don't know if there are special characteristics for ninth, tenth, eleventh children and so forth. I did know an extremely old old clergyman who read a small Bible without glasses at the age of round dozen you may imagine the local sanitary inspector calling his family. "Hill Your family is always vigorous? It is certain too big for this house." Imagine that intellectual power and real genius have frequently been found right down at the bottom of a large family of nonentities.

It is true that many first-born have been distinguished. There is a theory that the first-born of able and intelligent parents will most readily reproduce their fine qualities, but that the first-born of humble parents will himself be humble, although in the process of raising a dozen they may produce one who will soar aloft.

SHIP WITH UNWANTED CARGO OF MUNITIONS COMING TO H.K.

Tangled Odyssey Of Munitions For Ethiopia

"Telegraph" Special Representative

LA SANTA MARIA, the British ship with a cargo of munitions that nobody wanted, is coming to Hongkong.

This is the latest episode in a tangled Odyssey which has led La Santa Maria and her crew of 20 British sailors from Helsingfors to Gibraltar, from Dungeness to Lundy Island, and from Alderney to Sark and Guernsey in search of a dumping place for £20,000 worth of arms and high explosives.

The armaments, originally shipped by a Finnish firm at Helsingfors, were destined for Ethiopia, but the La Santa Maria had only reached Gibraltar when Italy completed the conquest of the African nation.

Delivery of the armaments to Ethiopia was therefore impossible. The ship turned about and attempted to land the explosives in Europe.

No nation would permit them to be landed. The Helsingfors firm were, it is understood, seriously considering dumping the cargo at sea, when hostilities threatened between North and South China.

Instructions to make for Hongkong were given by the shippers and not by the owners of the vessel, the former having a charter lien regarding the ultimate destination.

La Santa Maria carries 200 incendiary bombs, 40,000 rounds of ammunition, three aeroplanes, two tons of T. N. T. and three German pilots.

For over a week La Santa Maria sailed between Gibraltar and Britain seeking in vain for permission to land its perilous cargo. Tangier, London, Guernsey, Lundy Island and Sark were all tried in turn.

The cargo is worth between £15,000 and £20,000.

FOR ABYSSINIA
The vessel left Finland on April 20, the munitions (of Finnish and Belgian manufacture) being intended for Abyssinia. By the time La Santa Maria reached Gibraltar the war was over and the arms no longer required.

The Home Office refused permission to land the munitions in England, and the ship's skipper, Captain P. P. Allen, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, then tried to deposit the cargo at Tangier.

There it was actually landed, but had to be restowed on board.

The owners were then informed Lundy Island might take the cargo.

Backyard Aviation Can Be Yours

AUTOGYRO FOR SALE

ANYONE in Hongkong with sufficient capital, nerve and a pilot's certificate can make a backyard autogyro for himself and use it—for in the hangar at Kaitak waiting for a buyer is one of the only two autogyros in the Far East.

The queer looking machine is owned by the Far Eastern Aviation Company, who brought it out from England in November, 1934—crashed it only about six weeks later when it was on one of its first flights after being assembled, and then sent it back to England for repairs and reconditioning.

The damage was not serious. The undercarriage was wrecked, one of the gyro blades was damaged and there were a few minor breakages. In November 1935 the machine was brought back to Hongkong, re-assembled, and since then has been lying idle in the hangar.

FLIGHT TO KWANGSI
Only one long flight has been undertaken by the machine since then—that was a trip up country to Kwangsi, at it behaved very well and proved highly successful. But no far buyer has come forward to relieve the Far East Aviation Company of its £1,650 machine.

The autogyro was brought out with the intention of selling it to someone or some firm who would use it for flying into the interior where there were no regular aerodromes and where the ability to land on a stump, or something slightly larger, would prove a real asset. It is able to cruise at over 80 m.p.h. and its top speed is given at well over the 100 m.p.h. mark.

BRITISH FILM SHOWING NAVAL STORY AT THE KING'S

A British warship formerly stationed in Hongkong is one of four cruisers lent by the British Admiralty for the making of "Brown on Resolution". This film, which commences a two-day season this afternoon, is being screened in conformity with the new policy of the King's Theatre, whereby a certain percentage of British films will be shown each month.

It is the third British picture to be screened this month, the other two being "Fighting Stock" and "Where's George?".

Other British films scheduled for release in the near future include "Me and Marlborough", "The Gypsy", "Iron Duke".

The percentage of British films screened each month will be regulated by the support accorded them by the local public.

It is understood that the Management of the King's Theatre was pleased with the reception accorded "Fighting Stock" and "Where's George?", hence the decision to screen "Brown on Resolution" so soon after the other two pictures.

Betty Balfour and John Mills are featured in "Brown on Resolution", which is a wartime story of the British Navy. The Admiralty, for the first time in any dramatic film, gave the closest co-operation.

POPULAR COUPLE LEAVING

Mr. Hamilton

MANY
MR. AND MRS. A. T.
HAMILTON

HONGKONG will be losing one of its best-known educationists and one who can be described as one of the pioneers of Association football in the Colony when Mr. Andrew Todd Hamilton leaves for Home to-morrow, on retirement, after over 33 years' residence here.

He will be accompanied by Mrs. Hamilton, who has taken a keen interest in social work in the Colony for many years past.

Mr. Hamilton arrived in the Colony on June 1, 1903, for the Ellis Kadoorie School, then a private school. He joined the Government in 1910 and has been in various schools since, being headmaster of the Ellis Kadoorie Indian School for the past eight years.

In his early days here, he lived in Kowloon and was one of the original members of the Kowloon Cricket Club.

POPULAR SPORTSMAN

His favourite sport was soccer, and he played against Shanghai in 1908 and 1913. He did a great deal in fostering soccer amongst the schools in Hongkong, was on the council of the Hongkong Football Association for many years and was a past President of the H.K. Football Club. His favourite recreations now are golf and lawn bowls. At the latter game he has been a regular member of the Yacht Club team for many years. He is a member of the following clubs—Hongkong Club, Royal Hongkong Yacht Club, Royal Hongkong Golf Club, Hongkong Jockey Club, and the Hongkong Football Club.

Mr. Hamilton was a very ardent Volunteer in pre-war days. He went Home in 1917 and joined up, and saw service in France, returning to the Colony in 1919. For many years he has been a leading light in the Marine Club, and has held the highest office in the various Lodges of which he is a member. He was made a Justice of the Peace last year.

In the social life of the Colony, also, Mr. Hamilton has won much popularity, being a man of every character and of a most urbane disposition.

MRS. HAMILTON

Hongkong will say good-bye with feelings of real regret when Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton depart, and their friends will wish them many years of prosperity and happiness in their new country. Mrs. Hamilton arrived in Hongkong some seventeen years after her husband, and during her 16 years has led a very active life, her services being greatly in demand for social work.

When Lady Clementi started the Cheero Club, Mrs. Hamilton was one of her original lieutenants and has greatly enjoyed the work among the Service men. Lately she has devoted her energies to working for the Busy Bees, an organisation which does a lot of good work in a quiet way and raises considerable sums for charity.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton have been staunch supporters of the Kennedy Road Union Church for many years, and have always taken a very active part in its work. Mrs. Hamilton has always been a member of the Ladies' Committee and at various times has been Secretary and Chairman, while Mr. Hamilton has served on the Committee of Management and has held various offices.

They are leaving by the Empress of Japan to-morrow and after visiting relatives in Canada and the States expect to get home just before Christmas.

Their intention is to settle down in the West of Scotland.

PRESENTATION

At the conclusion of the bowls match on Saturday, between the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club and Craigengower, Mr. B. E. Maughan, on behalf of members of the former club, presented Mr. Hamilton with a bowler's travelling case, and in a happy speech, eulogised Mr. Hamilton's association with them, to which Mr. Hamilton replied, expressing his keen regret at having to sever his connection with them and the game in Hongkong.

Yesterday afternoon, the Staff of the Indian School entertained Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton at a farewell tea-party at the Gloucester Hotel, when Mr. M. Abdullah, the senior master presided.

incurred next year for the celebrations in connection with the Coronation of King Edward VIII. Hongkong Government will probably pay part of the expenses of officials who will proceed to London to represent the Colony at the celebrations on May 12.

GRANT ONLY "SEEDED" PLAYER TO DROP SET

TUCKEY'S SPLENDID WIN OVER DESTREMEAU

After Tuesday's disconcerting upsets in the ladies singles championship, Wimbledon results yesterday continued on more normal lines. All of the eight "seeded" players in the men's singles won fairly comfortably. Bryan Grant of America had to concede the first set to Maurice Delofof the English county player, but Perry, Von Cramm, Crawford, Austin, Allison, Quist and Budge won in straight sets.

Both England and America lost important representatives who were forced to retire through injuries. Gene Mako of United States conceded a walk-over due to a strained muscle, says Reuter, while G. P. Hughes is feeling the effects of slight heart strain and is saving himself for the Davis Cup Challenge Round. He has therefore scratched from the singles.

A United Press message adds that Jean Huguon, one of the famous erstwhile French "Three Musketeers" also withdrew and gave J. Lesueur his compatriot a walk-over after they had played four sets.

Two prominent English girls were eliminated during the day's play which continued in fine weather and before a large crowd.

Miss Dorman of Wightman Cup fame bowed before Madame Mathieu, leading French exponent, while Miss "Bilby" York, whose recent successes in the French Championships brought her into great prominence, fell a victim to the cleverness of Mme. Meulemeester of Belgium.

Mlle. Jedzejowska continued her winning way by removing Miss Nellie Adamson, the Belgian champion.

Second round successes were also gained by Sonoria Anila Lizana of Chile, Mme. Sperling (formerly Fraulein Krawinkel the 1931 finalist) and Miss Kay Stammers, British "hope."

ITOH STILL BRILLIANT

In the men's singles, Charles E. Hare, young English player, offered fine opposition to Jack Crawford, but found the Australian at his best. Von Cramm, second favourite, toyed with L. Hecht the Czechoslovakian while "Bunny" Austin played classical tennis to eliminate Clifford Sproule, manager of the Australian Davis Cup team.

E. Itoh, Japan's only representative this year, advanced to the third round with a brilliant victory over Hans Haanes of Holland. According to a Reuter report Itoh smashed wonderfully and outplayed the Hollander. Itoh exploited his opponent's weak backhand and puzzled him with his slow, but tricky, service.

Perry was never fully extended to beat Charitkavanji although the Siamese Cambridge Blue gave a most promising display, revealing a magnificent backhand drive. Perry tried to entice the Siamese to the net in order to pull out his famous passing strokes, but Charitkavanji refused to be drawn and timed his net excursions so well that he usually scored with ace volleys.

Perry, however, was always able to increase the pace to score game points and if anything the match served to enhance Perry's prospects.

ALL-INDIA TEAM AT "THE HOUSE"

Entertained By M.P.s

London, June 24. The All India cricketers were guests of a Lords and Commons cricket team at luncheon at the House of Commons today. The health of the visitors was proposed by the Prime Minister.

The company included Lord Willingdon, ex-Viceroy of India, and after luncheon the visitors were shown over the House of Parliament and were present at the opening of the House of Lords at which Lord Willingdon was formally introduced and took his seat for the first time since his elevation to the rank of Marquis—British Wireless.

VERITY & COVER NOT SO HOT

ENGLAND'S NO. 1 BOWLER IS FARNES

OBSERVES "FOUR COUNTIES"

The chief trouble about this alleged search for bowlers is that the cricket-adoring public either entirely ignores, or is blissfully ignorant of, the fact that these are not Australian Test batsmen that Gover and Verity are getting out and, in fact, are many of them three and four classes below that of Bradman and company.

We merely throw dust in our eyes if we try to persuade ourselves that the "tails" of Glamorgan or Kent or Essex, for example, are in the same parish as Australia's first seven batsmen with their tails up and wagging.

The amazing part of the whole story is that lots of people either seeing or reading, that Gover and Verity have routed Glamorgan, Surrey and Kent must have failed to think them the "goods," and, what is more, the first-rank goods for the Australian campaign.

BEATS ME

Sit where you like, in pavilion, in cheapest seats, in train, in tube, or in cinema, you will hear the same story.

As each useful analysis is handed us by Verity, or Gover, or Who-You-Will, his name is on everybody's lips as that of the man for the War in the Antipodes. Why is this? I confess I have no better answer than that the amateur selectors see the wood for the trees! Similarly, a useful batsman—no more and no less—like Maurice Turnbull is walked into the side for Australia, and not only that but the captaincy as well, because he gets a century against.

Cannot test to be sure, and to pass which many a player might give the top joint of his best first finger, but such a score has little to do with the likelihood of success on an Australian tour.

CHARMING

I am not cringing Turnbull. A very long way from that. A charming fellow, a good cricketer, and one who Glamorgan can thank his lucky stars that he was not born in Middlesex, or resident in Lancashire or Leicestershire. But Test teams are of eleven cricketers only, and you cannot, therefore, include in them all the "charming fellows" in England. Now, can you?

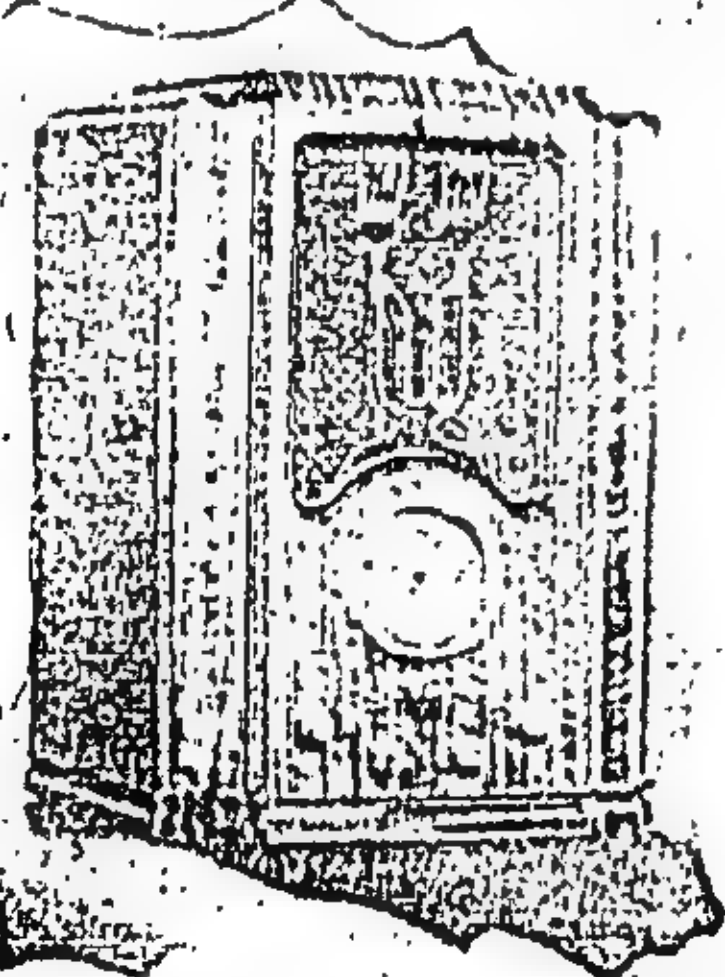

I want to know when, in a representative match in this country—the highest of all tests in cricket, especially if the match was a Lord's—Maurice Turnbull has ever "delivered the bacon?"

Naturally Glamorgan and South Wales adore him. So does Bristol love Wally. Canterbury worship Woolley, and so on. But not until the man, whoever he is, has delivered the goods during a famine or an unexpected shortage, is he of any real use to the XI. of England.

There is no question at all that the fast bowler who of all others has most impressed the selectors is Kenneth Farnes.

WAS "SOFT"

ALVES ALSO ADVANCES

L. A. Gutierrez (Recreio), winner of the title in 1932, defeated F. X. M. da Silva a club-mate, by 21 shots to 10 in the second round of the Lawn Bowls Open Singles championship on the Kowloon Dock Recreation Club green yesterday afternoon. The game ended on the 19th head. The loser had three threes in his total, and the winner scored the majority of his shots with singles.

H. A. Alves, also of the Club de Recreio, who reached the semi-finals last year, defeated G. E. F. Thompson by 21 shots to 11 on the same green. Thompson led by five shots on the seventh head, but thereafter Alves gained the upperhand up to the 19th head when the match concluded.

A fairly good game was witnessed on the Kowloon Bowling G.C. green when N. J. Behbington, of the Kowloon Cricket Club, defeated T. R. Hunter, of the Police R.C., by 21-19 on the 25th head. The winner at one stage led 13-3 but it took him five heads before he could pass the 13 mark.

On the Kowloon Cricket Club green, C. H. Hasto, of the Kowloon B.G.C., by the score of 22-18, the game ending on the 23rd head.

HONGKONG GAMES

W. V. Field defeated L. H. Collyer by 22 shots to 16 on the Police R.C. green. The winner led all the way, and scored 2 fours, one on the 6th head and the other on the 8th. The game ended on the 22nd head.

On the Civil Service C.C. green, A. S. Gomes defeated H. Overy by 21 shots to 12. Gomes, who was in fine form, scored one 4 on the 16th head. Overy led in the first two heads, but after he had allowed Gomes to gain the lead on the next, his play deteriorated and he trailed behind throughout the remaining heads. The game finished on the 20th head.

J. Fraser proved too strong for R. Ellis on the Hongkong Football Club green, winning by 21 to 13 shots. The winner led in the first ten heads, but after that Ellis took the lead only to lose it again after two heads. Fraser scored one 4 on the 19th head.

After leading for the bigger part of the game, J. Henson lost to W. Mulcahy by 21 shots to 14 on the Craigengower green. The game ended on the 19th head.

In a Pairs Championship match played on the Kowloon C.C. green, S. A. Bright and J. E. Henson, of the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, defeated F. A. Machado and H. F. Rozario, of the Recreio, 24-14. The game was postponed from last week when the Bowling Green pair were leading 10-11.

PLAYER WITHDRAWS

The match between D. Rumlahn and J. Watson was postponed owing to the indisposition of the former. This match will take place on Wednesday, July 1, on the Police Green.

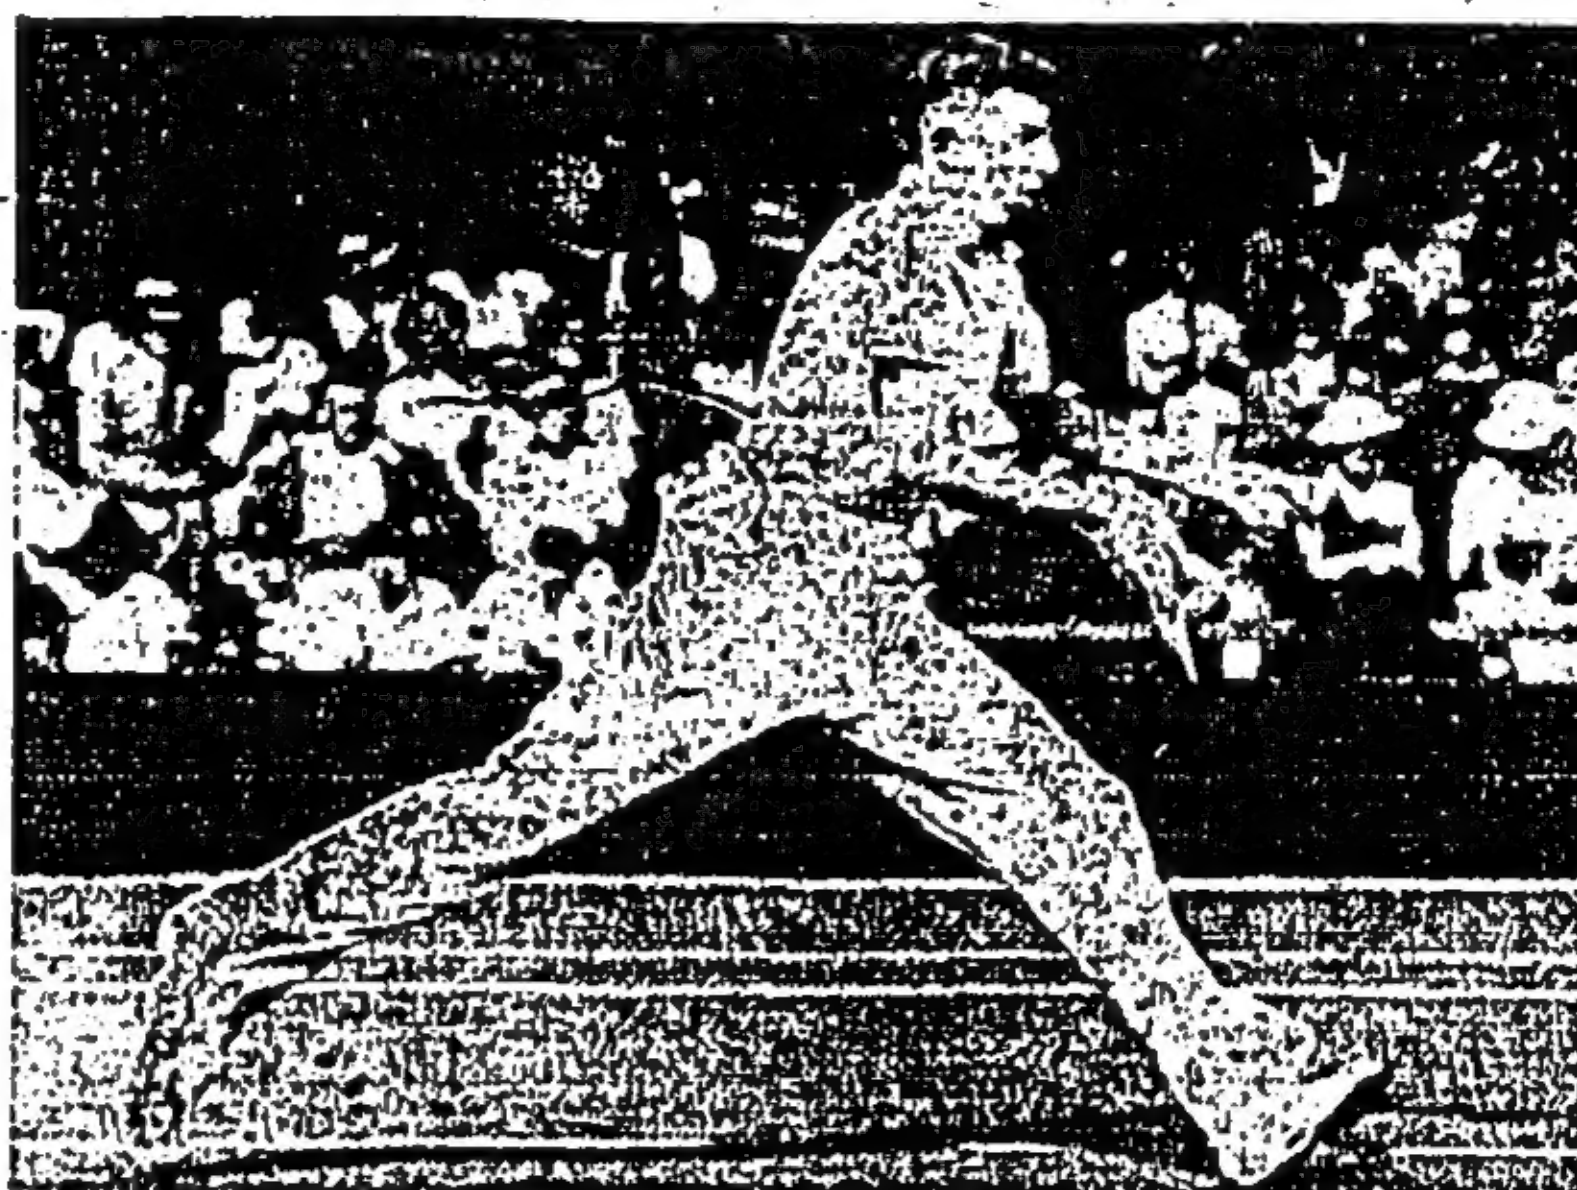

As T. Robson is paying a short visit to Singapore next week, his match against W. K. May has been brought forward to tomorrow on the Football Club green. It was originally fixed for Monday.

E. el Arculli has withdrawn from the Pairs Championship owing to ill health and his place is being taken by K. M. Omar who will play with D. Rumlahn against T. Coleman and G. N. Mitchell on the Kowloon C.C. Green tomorrow.

FOOTBALLER WHO BECAME AN M.A.

Job In Steel Works*

(By G.W.R. Smith)

ONE William George McMenemy, twenty-three years old, professional footballer, former steelworker, Master of Arts, at twenty-one, of Glasgow University, walked into my room. McMenemy, who last season played at left half for Queen of the South, the Scottish First Division club, had a story of courage and determination to tell. It makes good reading.

When he was a boy of seventeen at Motherwell Higher Grade School both his parents died. He took his Higher Grade certificate and then set out to look for work. Jobs were scarce, but he was taken on at a local steel foundry.

A talented footballer, he had played for Lanarkshire boys several times, and it was natural for him to keep up the game while he was earning his own living.

One day a Celtic "scout" spotted young McMenemy. He was immediately signed and "placed" with St. Anthony's, a Scottish junior club.

This gave him his chance. He played football as a professional to cover the expenses of his education at Glasgow University, where he aimed to take his degree.

With St. Anthony's, he became one of the most promising players in Scottish junior football and had repeated offers to cross the Border. Then came another blow from Fate—right on the chin!

Playing with St. Anthony's he broke his ankle. It was a hard fight. Doctors thought he would never kick a ball again. Six months out of the game... then Celtic released him.

His luck kept in. He was signed by Hamilton Academicals, another first-class team. Then came a fall. Back to Glasgow Perthshire, a junior club.

He attracted more attention with this club than when he was with St. Anthony's, but still did not want to cross the Border. Finally he signed or sweat on a firm pitch, and both he and Nichols had had three weeks' match practice, Farnes was "soft," and had not seen a batsman since 1934!

On these facts alone he and not the other two, well as they bowled, should have had the best Press. But there was an untutored tendency to crab Farnes, who, taking all our fast people such as his best, is easily the best of the lot.

HE'S GOT RHYTHM

Make no blunder about it, all being well, employers patriotic and all that, Farnes will go to Australia as No. 1 shock trooper.

Of all our fast bowlers his is the style, he has the rhythm plus the bounce from a good length. None other can make the good length one "perch," as Bill Bradley used to say, so often as Farnes can.

The only doubt about him is whether he makes the ball "run away" enough. He has, to a greater degree than his rivals, the faculty of compelling the batsman to play at him. A great asset that.

Whoever saw the batsman allowed to leave Tom Richardson and Lockwood alone. Shrewsbury, or was it Billy Gunn? tried on that game—only once though—at the Oval. And down went the Citadel.

The better the batsman the more likely Farnes to get wickets.

It was freely and adversely commented on at Brentwood how slowly some of the Indian team seemed to be taking the match.

NOT JUSTIFIED

As an example, in spite of their bad failure in the first innings, only Amar Nath, who made 107, and Pullin, who made 44, took the trouble to have a little batting practice before their second innings.

I should not have thought that the results of the tour to date would justify several of the team in thinking that they are not in need of as much batting practice as they can get.

I do not regret having styled Amar Nath the Trumper of our visiting side. His 130 out of 174 from the bat at Brentwood was an innings Trumper would have played, and would have been proud to play.

Lucky for Essex, indeed, that three catches, two of them snorters and one of them off Cutmore before he had scored, were dropped soon after tea.

for Queen of the South.

At the end of last season McMenemy, who had never been to London, decided he would try fresh fields, so he packed his bag and came south. He has no definite plans. He is willing to take on anything. Don't be mistaken—his football is not finished by a long way. I could mention several southern clubs who would gladly sign him.

"THAT'S the FINEST SHAVE I Ever Had"

No wonder this gentleman is pleased. He has just finished his first shave with Williams—and what a delightful revelation it has been to him!

Men everywhere who use Williams feel the same way. They all say they have never used a shaving cream that feels so good on the face that soaks the beard so thoroughly; that makes shaving so clean, close and comfortable.

Of course there's a reason for all this. A century of experience, a vast background of knowledge, behind every tube of Williams Shaving Cream. Only the finest ingredients are used. Williams lather is rich, thick, moist, mellow. It is lather for the skin as well as the beard.

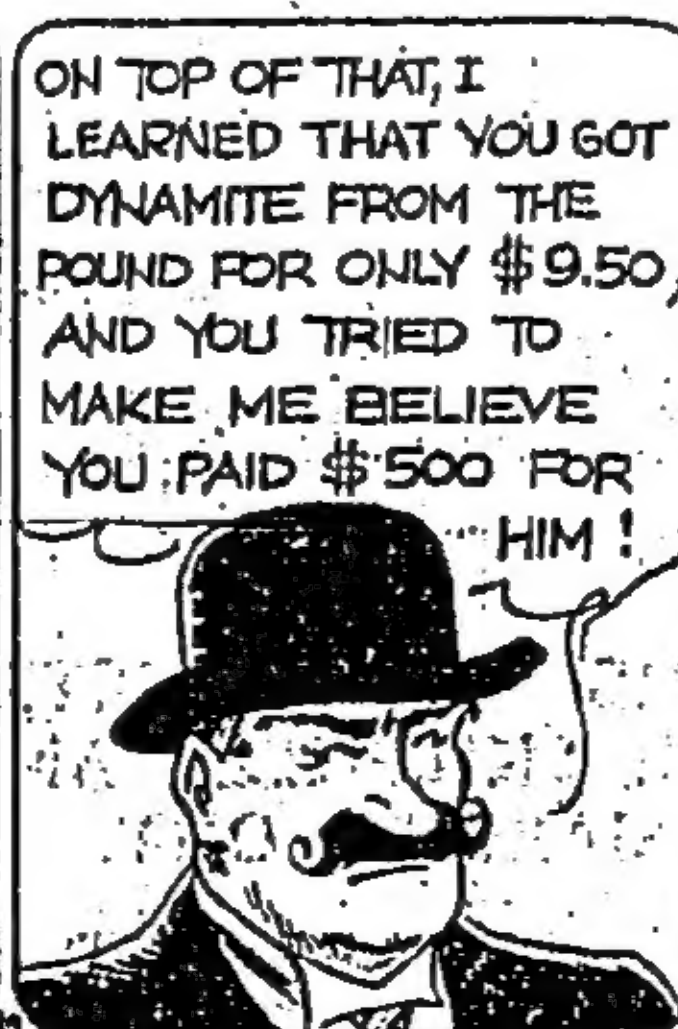

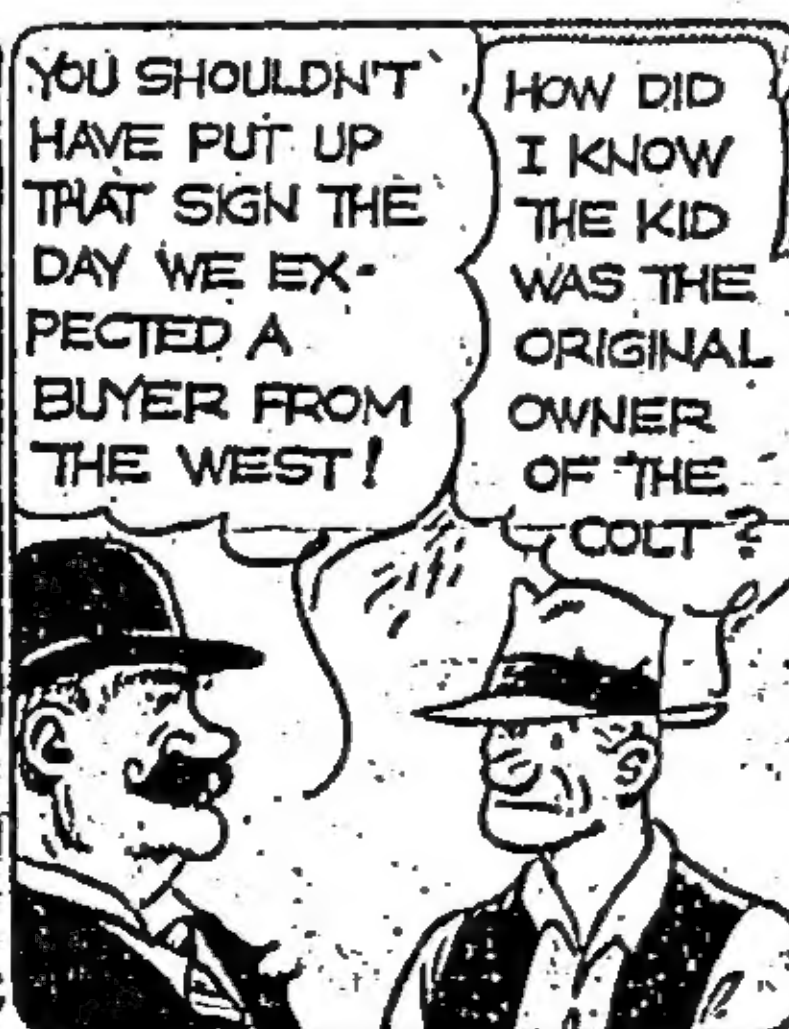

Williams is economical too—a little makes a lot of lather. Try it yourself.

CHAPTER III.

THEY were bumping along a dirt debt road late that night when two men sprang before the car. As Michael came to a stop, a gun was
jabbed against his back.

Things happened quickly after that.
The gunmen, notorious convicts who
had just broken out of jail, made them prisoners in their own car. They
women as a perfect decoy for troops on the lookout for two lone robbers.

They travelled all night but with morning, the gunmen drove to a mountain hideout. Escape seemed hopeless but Michael, now thoroughly
desperate, decided to take a chance.
On the ruse that he was thirsty, he got up to pour himself some water
and then suddenly swung, hurling the pitcher full into their faces. He had smashed his way through the window
and was gone by the time they reached their guns.

On his dash to freedom, he passed
the car. He stopped long enough to duplicate the little trick he had pulled on Paul several days before. A little tinkering with the petrol on the feed line—and the stage was set.

He was hiding in a clump of bushes
when the car came to a halt. As the gunmen ran out to inspect the motor,
Michael swung a huge stick he had
picked up. There was a fierce battle but Michael managed, in the midst of flying fists, to shout instructions:

"The gun, Aunt Charlotte! Get the gun and keep them covered!"

Then, to his own disgust, he faint-
ed dead away.

Paula's arms were around him when he regained consciousness. Next to him lay the two gunmen, still out.

But what brought a happy grin to Michael's lips was Paula's frantic
plea:

"Michael, speak to me, darling!
You're not going to die, are you?"

"I most certainly am going to die,"
Michael assured her as he got up.

"You fool!" she laughed at him.

"You're not wounded at all!"

He was suddenly serious as he pulled her toward him.

"Paula, listen, does this make sense?"

"I have to be wounded and dying for you to call me darling!"

"Can't you manage to call me darling
again?"

"Darling," she whispered softly.

"Thanks," he said quietly. "I don't blame you for wanting to marry that guy in Los Angeles. Why should you consider me at all—just a tramp you picked up on the road?"

Her eyes were stary as she looked at him.

"I'd love you, even if you were the biggest tramp in the world—and you probably are."

"I'd love you," he replied solemnly,
"even if you were the sweetest, dearest
girl in the world—and you probably
are!"

"Well—" It was Aunt Charlotte, recalling them forcibly to the immediate present. "If we're going to get rid of these two—creatures—"

"Come on," Michael became a dynamo of action. "We can make Albuquerque by evening, pick-up our reward and go right on from there.
We'll travel all night. I've got to be in Los Angeles to-morrow. It's
—about a job."

"Oh, yes," Paula smiled. "I was going to ask you about your prospects."

"You won't regret marrying me," he promised happily. "I promise to mean my own socks, cook my own meals
and—"

"Please!" Paula interrupted timidly. "Let me have my own tables, Michael!"

Aunt Charlotte sighed resignedly.
"Jackson doesn't know it," she murmured, "but he has no mother
for his children."

And so Michael, that evening, attracted his third objective—money.

The reward was $1,000 for the capture of the gunmen but legal technicalities
meant several days' delay in the payoff. Michael settled for $100 spot
cash.

Just before starting out again, he decided to phone his uncle who was already in Los Angeles. He did not realize that the door of the phone
booth was slightly open and that Paula, who had just entered in search
of him, could overhear.

"Hi, Uncle Carlton," he was saying
lubrically into the phone. "Remember that little wager we made in New York? I just called you to make sure you'd get to the bank to-morrow
before they closed. Sure, I have
the suit right on my back, and here—"

"Hi, Uncle Carlton," he was saying
lubrically into the phone. "Remember that little wager we made in New York? I just called you to make sure you'd get to the bank to-morrow
before they closed. Sure, I have
the suit right on my back, and here—"

"Now, don't quibble, Uncle—you lose the bet. Certainly I've got the girl. That was in the wager wasn't it? Her name's Paula Gilbert."

Paula gasped and stood very still for a moment. Then, quietly, she slipped out, still unobserved. She did not wait to hear the rest of Michael's conversation.

"She's beautiful!" he was raving to his uncle. "She's like Helen of Troy,
Venus, Katharine Hepburn—all rolled
into one. But listen, the bet's got nothing to do with this. I love her honestly, sincerely—I, well, I haven't the words for it. I'll see you tomorrow on the deadline—five o'clock."

Not until an hour later did Michael learn that Paula had sold her car and with her Aunt, was taking the night
plane for Los Angeles.

THE GIANT airliner was well on its way when Michael was discovered hidden in the lavatory. "He tried to buy a ticket but no seats were to be had. And though he knew he would be arrested as soon as the plane
landed, he had taken the chance. He had to find out why Paula had run
away."

Sitting on the floor next to her seat,
he had little success in making her
talk.

"But you owe me an explanation
and I intend to get one," he insisted.

Paula's voice was like icy steel. "You wouldn't want to bet on that, too,
would you?" she asked deliberately.

Realisation dawned on him. "So that's it! You heard me on the phone!"

"You didn't happen to hear the entire conversation, did you?" he asked hopefully.

"I heard enough!"

"But I can explain all that in two sentences," he pleaded.

It was no use. Paula even refused to quarrel with him. As for her aunt
—Michael was just not getting anywhere, except, of course, to fail.

He was certain that his uncle would manage his release as soon as he heard what had happened. But Carl-ton MacCreigh, his nephew learned to win the bet. He didn't intend to release Michael until after five o'clock,
zero hour for the wager.

It was, surprisingly enough, Aunt Charlotte who arranged his bail. As they drove away, she explained her
sudden change of heart.

"I have a feeling that deep down in
your heart, you really love my niece, and I know Paula loves you. But she's bent on breaking her own heart, the little idiot, and I want you to stop it. She's at a store now, getting her trousseau. Get over there and make
her see daylight."

Paula was trying on a white evening gown when Michael burst into the fitting room.

"I told you I could explain about
that bet, he shouted at her. "Why
don't you listen to me?"

Paula glanced at her wrist watch.
"It's almost five o'clock now," she struggled with disinterest. "I've got to a wedding on my hands. I've got to mail to China. I've got a trousseau

to finish buying and an appointment
at the beauty parlour. Sorry, I haven't time to hear you."

Michael "grabbed" her hand and
pointed to her watch.

"You'll listen to what I have to say
right now," he stormed. "It's five o'clock and I lose my bet, no matter
what I do—married or unmarried.
That ought to prove to you that it didn't mean anything to me. At first,
maybe it did—but when I told you I loved you, I meant it—bet or no bet—
and, spoiled brat that you are, I still love you." He bent down over her
and gave her an angry little shake.

"Now, will you marry me?"

"No!"

"I'm a pauper, haven't got a cent."

"No." It was a little weaker this time.

"I've got a job, but you'll probably have to wait in washing."

She looked up at him then and
smiled.

"Why didn't you say so in the first place?" she murmured.

Michael whooped and pulled her to
him hungrily. "Come on, get the Wallace colours off! I'll buy you a
real trousseau."

In the basement of a five-and-ten,
they found the perfect wedding ensemble for the poor bride of Michael MacCreigh—a dust cap, a rubber
apron, rubber gloves. Paula put them on then, and there and proudest before Michael's admiring eyes.

"Just what the smart washwoman
will wear," she said gaily. "Everything complete except housemaid's
knee. Well," she put her arm through Michael's affectionately. "It's got out before they close the store on us."

"But, Madam," the salesgirl timid-
ly volunteered, "the store doesn't close until six. It's ten minutes to five
now!"

Michael's eyes almost popped. He whirled excitedly.

"Didn't you put your watch back
in Albuquerque?" As she shook her head, he grabbed her and dashed for
the door. "We're rich again—we're
in the money. Come on!"

And so, promptly at five, though
how they made it no one ever knew,
Michael confronted Carlton Mac-
Creigh, all conditions of the wager
fulfilled. He had the money, the suit, but better than that, the one girl in
the world.

At their celebration dinner that night, the elder MacCreigh toasted the couple a little sadly.

"Well, I'm in the show business
whether I like it or not," he sighed.
"You deserve the money, Michael, but I still think you ought to come into the meat packing business. That ten-thousand dollar a year job with me will hold."

Paula turned on Michael with amazement.

"You've been made an offer like that
and you're going to risk good money
playing around the stage?" As he nodded, she went on, determinedly:
"Oh, no—I want to know where you
are nights. I want my children to know where you are nights. You're going into the meat packing business,
my good man!"

Michael stared at her for a moment
and then grinned.

"I suppose you know you're a double-crosser? Do you know what Bute MacCreigh does to double-
crossers?"

"Yes—I imagine he kisses them."
Well, she pouted as Michael made no move. "Aren't you going to kiss me?"

He shook his head stubbornly. "Say
please!" he demanded.

"Please!" Paula whispered, throwing her arms around him. "Please—
please—please!"

The rest was lost as Michael's lips
found hers.

EQUALS HITTING RECORD

TWO HOMERS IN ONE INNING
DIMAGGIO'S DISTINCTION

New York, June 24.
A major league record was equalled by the New York Yankees slugger, Dimaggio, to-day when he poked out two home runs in one inning.

His feat was accomplished during a terrific hitting attack which Phelps, the Chicago pitcher, could not hold. Most of New York's runs came in one inning, when almost every man batted twice and Dimaggio distinguished himself.

Altogether the Yankees, who lead the League, scored eighteen runs. But besides Dimaggio's homers, Criswell, DiGregorio, and others, hit over the stands. The Yanks hit 24 times, the highest total this season.

The White Sox did their share of hitting too, scoring eleven times on twelve connections. Sewell hitting a homer.

Home runs did not save Boston against Detroit. Although V. Ferrell and Miller both scored with circuit drives, the Red Sox only scored six times on ten hits, while the Tigers scored seven on eleven, aided by Owen's homer.

Cleveland scored a win over Philadelphia, Averill and Trosky hitting for a circuit, and giving Reds five runs in eleven running starts. Athletics hit eight and tallied six times. This was the first of a double-header.

In the second game of their double-header Cleveland repeated the earlier performance. The Indians scored fourteen runs on as many hits, Averill getting a homer, and the Athletics only managed two runs on nine connections. Philadelphia had one error.

Washington again beat St. Louis, seven to four, hitting twelve times against seven, including Holter's homer.

RAIN INTERRUPTS

Rain ruined the National League schedule. There was only one meeting, that a double-header, which Pittsburgh and New York Giants split.

Giants won the first, four to three, and were lucky, because they only hit five times to the Pirates' eight. Each had a homer, the Giants from Ott and the Pirates from Jensen. Pirates had one error.

The second game Pittsburgh won four to one, with eight hits. They held the Giants to three. There were no errors.—Reuter.

DEMOCRATS SEEKING PLATFORM

MONEY PLANK APPROVED

Philadelphia, June 24.
The Democratic Party's national convention completed its preliminary business speedily and then noisily, and in disorderly fashion, prepared to organize on a permanent basis preparatory to adopting a platform and re-nominating President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The delegates are merely riding the mighty Party slogan-roller, whose course is already set, but there are continuous whispered conferences which make the convention tick.

The permanent organization of committeemen includes Mr. Edward Kemp, Manila, Mr. Dan Devine, Hawaii, Credentials, Mr. Donald McEvan, Manila, and Mr. Charles Holt, Hawaii, Rules; and Mr. Lionel G. Harris, Manila, and Mr. Poindexter, Hawaii, Platform Committee.

The Platform Committee listened all day long to volunteer planks, however, but sought among its own membership to compose the vital issues, including the question of amending the Constitution on behalf of labour. Mr. William Green, President of the Federation of Labour, demanded curtailment of the Supreme Court's powers, a thirty-hour work week, continued Federal public works, high wages, a guarantee of labour's right to organize, continuation of the New Deal and social security plans.

FARM PROGRAMME

Mr. Edward O'Neal, President of the Farm Bureau Federation, presented an eleven point farm programme embracing controlled agriculture, managed currency, reduced industrial tariffs, a permanent commodity loan plan and aid for disposing of the seasonal crops. His also asked for surplus control and regulation of monopolies.

The South's rebellion against altering the convention rules to permit nomination of presidential and vice-presidential candidates by a simple majority, instead of two-thirds, was carried in the Rules Committee. However, the fight is likely to go on.

WAGES PLANK

The platform fight centres about Governor Herbert Lehman's demands, on behalf of New York, for a wage and hours plank stronger than that President Roosevelt has already approved.

Leaders have expressed satisfaction at the proposed money plank, affirming the present monetary system, and stating the Administration favours a policy of adapting itself to changing financial conditions as they occur. The policy mentions neither a return to gold or immediate efforts at international stabilization. The plank does not include Senator Thomas' silver re-monetisation proposals.—United Press.
